Honeymoon's over

Mayor, city clerk battle over 'accounts payable'

The honeymoon didn't last long for newly-elected Romulus City Clerk Raymond Cantrell.

Two sessions into the new council year, Cantrell and Mayor William Oakley were battling over which department - the clerk's or the treasurer's - should be responsible for "accounts payable".

Cantrell, who presented a written statement to council, argued that the function is mandated by the city charter to be administered by the Clerks Office; Mayor Oakley offered a different opinion. He feels that the function should be handled by the Treasurer's Office.

Cantrell received support from councilman Jimmie Raspberry who pointed out "that the city charter emphatically points out that the function is in the area of the clerk's domain."

Raspberry and Oakley were both members of the charter commission which drew up the document and Oakley informed Raspberry "that you may interpret the charter the way you want; but I also have my interpretation."

In his written statement, Cantrell offered the following evidence as to why the function should remain with the clerk:

"According to Section 9.9 Paragraph C of the Charter of the City of Romulus, the Clerks Office is to receive and audit all demands against the city. These de-

Court gets in holiday mood

This is the season to be jolly, and it also is the season when the courts refuse to garnish or evict persons from their homes.

In an administrative order from judges James B. Stone and Henry Zaborowski's courtroom, "it was ordered that no order of garnishment of wages shall be entered in this court from the beginning of business on Dec. 7 through the close of business on Dec. 25, 1981."

It was also ordered "that no order of eviction from possession of residential real estate, or seizures under claim and delivery procedure shall be entered beginning on Dec. 14 through the close of business on Jan. 1, 1982."

Warning to department heads

Huron Township Supervisor William Sullivan had some harsh words for members of municipal departments at the Nov. 24 meeting of the township board of trustees.

"There is a rivalry existing between some of our township departments and I feel it's a discredit to the board and to the people."

"I want to say it now, publicly, if you feel someone is not doing their job, come to this board and say so and stop this rivalry."

"We have a capable police chief and a capable fire chief — I want them to put their talents together to present a picture of a good operation in this township," Sullivan said, emphatically.

Police Chief Joe Carney made no response to the supervisor's remarks. Fire Chief Frank Marvaso was not present at the meeting.

Christmas breakfast?

Romulus VFW Post 9568 will host its annual Christmas Breakfast, beginning at 6 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 6.

The breakfast will be held at the Post Hall, 39270 Huron River Drive, and will feature juice, scrambled eggs, bacon, sausage, hash browns, french toast and toast, all served buffet style.

The cost will be $3 for adults and $1.50 for children 12 years and under. Tickets are available in advance in the hall's club room, or at the door the day of the breakfast.

Starship Command comes to the rescue

There are only a handful of us who have not had motor trouble on the roads and highways.

Usually that means frustration, as you wait and hope that someone will come along to help. Maybe a State Police car will stop.

If you're lucky and if a CBER should spot you, help usually is on the way.

In Romulus there is a special CB unit, "Starship Command", which was organized to do just that: help stranded motorists. The "Command" recently moved into its new facility located in the Romulus Police Station on Olive Street.

"We enjoy helping people," said Lois Thompson, who is one of the local volunteers who monitors Channel 9 in search of distress signals. "You know, that's the emergency channel and when we hear that someone out there is having trouble, we immediately try to dispatch help."

Mrs. Thompson said that the radio channel could pick up distress signals in a 20 mile radius, and she has had some very interesting calls.

"Everything happens out there — heart attacks, accidents, fires and what we try to do is to relay the message on to the police or fire units as quickly as possible."

Seated at the "controls of Starship Command" is Lois Thompson, just one of a group of some 45 to 50 area men and women who volunteer their time to monitor channel 9 for distress signals. The group takes turns listen-

Mrs. Thompson, who is the mother of six children whose ages range from 15 to 30, said she got involved in the program because "most of us like to do things for other people. This is one way of helping someone in distress."

She pointed out that someone mans the radio 24 hours a day, seven-days a week and all work as volunteers.

"We presently have between 45 to 50 members," Mrs. Thompson added, "but we could always use more help."

The group was originally housed in one of the rooms at the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, but for economic reasons the room was closed down. The members were then invited by Romulus Police Chief Donald Flood to take up residency in the police station.

"He (Chief Flood) is just one marvelous person," Mrs. Thompson said. "It's people like him who keep us going."

If you feel you would want to volunteer your time, drop the Starship Command a letter, 32228 Michigan Ave., Wayne Michigan.

At the controls

Detro flexes its muscles

Cautioned by City Attorney Chuck Lowther not to comment on the subject or they may face contempt charges, Romulus City Council last week listened to a host of unemployed area and local residents plead DetRo Recovery's case in public.

DetRo is seeking council approval to construct a multi-million dollar sludge-to-fertilizer plant in Romulus, and recently won a lower-court's decision to go ahead with its plans. However, Lowther said that the city would appeal its case to the higher court, and was ready "to fight this case right up to the Supreme Court if necessary."

DetRo had placed ads in metropolitan and local newspapers last week encouraging potential employees to show up at the council meeting in hopes of persuading council.

The letter, in part said, "We (DetRo) are most optimistic of the outcome of this delaying maneuver, but now our immediate goal is to convince the City of Romulus that a further delay is costly for the city, is self-defeating in stifling industrial growth of the city and holding back much needed employment opportunities."

The letter goes on to say that "some uninformed councilmen have been known to say that the material product of our company is toxic and hazardous. This is absolutely not true. The material has been classified "hazardous" by the Department of Natural Resources, the regulatory agency involved."

"While we are processing your application (for employment) and setting up interviews, any support you may give us in the way of a letter or a phone call to Council members, or Mayor, and ideally, showing up at the City Council meeting, City Hall, Goddard Road, at Wayne, at 7:30 p.m., November 24, 1981, to express your need of employment in a developing industry. This would be most appreciated, and opportune. At the council meeting, you will be allowed to speak, if you so desire."

The letter was signed by Thomas Field, Personnel Director, and the letter head carried the title: DetRo Recovery Products Inc., 400 Renaissance Center, Suite 1100, Detroit, Michigan 48243.

At least three persons who said they were unemployed approached council and asked council members to allow industry to come into the community and help relieve the unemployment situation.

Dean Melchi, representing DetRo, told council "that it was wasting its time and that the state had ample regulatory agencies to police the project."

A resident also questioned council about the attorney fees the city was paying to fight DetRo. He said he felt it was "a waste of taxpayers' money."

Council also heard from three area unemployed — Gordon McCleery, Ken Garnett and Allen Kerbeson — who said they hoped Council would approve the project so that they may find employment with the company.

However, Pam Frasier, a Romulus resident, offered an opposing viewpoint. Mrs. Frasier said she feared that the project would endanger the quality of life and health of the residents.

Council later met in executive session to discuss the DetRo project and then returned to the chambers, where councilman Barry Baumann offered a motion to hold a public meeting for the adoption of a zoning ordinance amendment for the regulation of sludge composing in the city.

Baumann's motion, seconded by councilman Alan Lambert, was approved unanimously. Council set the date for the public hearing for December 22.

At that time, council instructed its attorney to "fight this case all the way up to the Supreme Court if necessary."

That is the question

Should Huron hire fulltime or part-time police officers?

While Huron Township voters approved a two-mill tax increase to fund 24-hour police protection on the Nov. 3 ballot, there appears to be some disagreement as to the means of implementing such service.

Huron Township Police Chief Joe Carney presented a plan to the board of trustees at the Nov. 24 meeting suggesting the hiring of two full-time officers to provide the 24-hour service.

Trustee Gary Bates had a different approach, however, and suggested that Carney hire parttime officers for "higher visibility."

Bates contended that parttime officers would eliminate the necessity of paying benefits to full time employees and would provide an increased total police staff. He cited the City of Detroit as an example where off-duty officers were allegedly credited with thwarting crimes.

"I just think we could get more people per dollar spent," he asserted. Bates contended that a larger number of officers within the community would be a deterrent to crime and provide the same caliber of service as full time police.

Carney disagreed and explained that while the township could get more part-time people, he felt a full time officer was a career policeman and would be more experienced and better trained.

While he admitted that parttime officers did have to be certified and attend police training school, he also explained that with layoffs in several state and county departments, numerous fully accredited officers with many years experience in various types of police work were available and seeking employment.

"I would be more comfortable with these men on the job. I don't prefer part-time officers for a variety of reasons," he told Bates. "I'm talking quality—you're talking quantity," he said.

"No, I want both," Bates countered. Carney's position was supported by Trustee William Geierman who remarked that most parttime officers would have other jobs and he didn't feel that they would be "as sharp" as a full time policeman with no other employment obligations.

Carney also reminded the board that a part time officer would be paid eight weeks wages while undergoing training at the police academy. Bates alleged that this money could be recouped by the township in the reduced hourly wage and lack of benefit expense for parttime employees.

No final decision on the matter will be made until January.

Taylor man, 23 suspect in murder

State Police have arrested a 23-year-old Taylor man and charged him with the October murder of a teen-age Romulus girl.

The suspect, Randal Bates Adkins, was arraigned on a charge of second-degree murder in the stabbing death of Lisa M. Kotcher.

Adkins stood mute upon his arraignment before 29th District Judge John Seiler and an innocent plea was entered for him by the court. He was committed to Wayne County Jail to await preliminary examination.

State Police said that Adkins was arrested last Wednesday near his home. They said they have no motive for the slaying. However, the defendant attended night school classes at Taylor Center High School where the murdered victim also was taking courses.

Miss Kotcher's partially nude body was discovered Nov. 15 behind the First Missionary Baptist Church in Brownstown Township by some parishoners leaving afternoon services.

Miss Kotcher was last reported alive on Oct. 13 when she left her classes at Taylor Center. She had telephoned her mother around 10 p.m. that evening prior to leaving the school and informed her that she had a ride home.

Miss Kotchner never reached home and became the object of a state-wide police search for nearly a month.

The Wayne County Medical Examiner's report revealed that the victim had died from multiple stab wounds. Police would not say if they had the murder weapon.

School day extended by 5 minutes

The nights may be getting longer, but so are the days for students in the Romulus Community School District.

The School Board voted last week to extend the school day by five minutes, beginning on Mon., Nov. 23. One half-hour of classroom time was also added to the four parent-teacher conference days.

This added time will enable the district to meet the state requirement of 900 hours of classroom instruction per school year, school officials say.

For delay in payments to foster parents

DSS blames procedural mix-up

Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard released a letter from the State Department of Social Services (DSS) this week in which they admit a mixup in their payment procedures caused a four-month delay in Child Care payments, but the knowledge was of little consolation to many of the 2700 local youngsters who had a sparse Thanksgiving meal.

Foster Parents have not been paid since August 1st.

A three-way telephone conversation between Ms. Beard, Chairman of the County's Human Resources Committee, State Representative Richard Young, and Kevin Seitz, a financial analyst for the House Fiscal Agency in Lansing, Nov. 20 resulted in a discovery by Seitz that the State DSS was applying the wrong payment reimbursement system to Wayne County.

The other 82 counties within Michigan pay child providers direct and are then reimbursed by the state. In the case of Wayne County, the state pays the providers, sends an expense report to the county which, in turn, reimburses the state its 50 percent share.

Without the report, Wayne County was unable to submit its share of costs, whereupon the state refused to send out checks to the 1156 foster parents providing child care within Wayne County. "It was a Catch 22 situation," Ms. Beard noted.

"The resultant mixup," commented one downriver foster mother who chose to remain anonymous, "made Thanksgiving very bleak indeed for many children."

Child care providers are paid $9.20 per day per teenager to cover the costs of food, clothing, personal needs, transportation and a small allowance. "You can see that its love, not money, that opens the door to these abused and homeless children," said Frank Bechtol, vice president of the Michigan Foster Parents Association.

In Seitz' letter to Ms. Beard, he pointed out that the House and Senate appropriations committees, after becoming involved in the problem facing Wayne County foster parents, resolved three issues which should allow for the making of payments.

- The Child Care Fund ceiling for the full state was NOT exceeded since numerous counties had under-expended their original ceilings.

- The Wayne County ceiling for 1980-81 was not truly reflective of costs. It was based on 1979-80 expenditures, but, it did not include a certain 1979-80 obligation which was paid in 1980-81. It was decided to use the surplus funds to adjust the 1980-81 Wayne County Ceiling for this delayed cost, and,

- The State Department had originally decided to switch Wayne County from a cash to accrual accounting system for the foster care component. It would in effect have created a 14-month fiscal year for the county which was on a 12-month expenditure basis. Therefore, it was decided to keep Wayne County purchased care on a cash basis.

Seitz said the three actions in combination should provide sufficient state funding so that payments can be made as soon as possible.

"In addition," he said, "a transition period will be allowed for Wayne County to change its system so that it makes all payments, and, in turn, bills the state for 50 percent of total costs."

"It was this last statement," commented Constantine Stathos, Director of the county's Budget and Finance division, "that was the major cause of the recent delay."

Ms. Beard said checks were beginning to trickle in to local foster homes according to spot polls taken in various communities.

An inspection of a list of foster parents, provided by the State Licensing Board, indicates that each of the county's communities have from 10 to 55 child care homes.

In a related action, Commissioner Beard was appointed to the newly created Child Care Fund Advisory Committee this week by John T. Dempsey, Director of the State Department of Social Services and will serve with two commissioners from other counties to provide county level perspectives, data, and information on services, funding, budgeting and policy issues.

Dempsey said the members will help assure that OCYS (Office of County Youth Services) Department decisions will be appropriate to county realities and acceptable to counties and will also provide an additional vehicle for bringing county concerns to bear on Child Care Fund administration.

CAP seeks recruits

Ten cadets and three senior members head up a new squadron of the Civil Air Patrol at Romulus South Junior High School.

The Civil Air Patrol, an auxiliary of the United States Air Force, is also seeking new members — boys and girls — who are 13 through 18 years of age. The CAP offers valuable training and experience in aerospace education, leadership and physical fitness.

The local CAP squadron meets every Wednesday, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at the school located at 11401 Olive. For further information, contact Lt. Nina Trump at 595-1092 after 2 p.m.

Police chief offers traffic flow solution

There are going to be some changes made.

The third vehicle in five years involving a police car has prompted Huron Township Police Chief Joe Carney to take a long, hard look at the traffic flow and parking arrangements adjacent to the township hall and police station.

Carney presented a plan to the board of trustees at a regular Nov. 18 meeting which would provide for the designation of the driveway on either side of the building as one-way, providing a more controlled, one-way traffic flow around the building.

He has also redesigned the parking area to allow for more controlled parking of police and city vehicles.

As an added safety precaution, Carney has suggested the purchase of two 26-inch round, convex mirrors to be attached to the building so that vehicle operators can easily check the traffic flow on the sidewalk before attempting to exit the driveway.

The new plan will eliminate the necessity of backing out of the blind driveway onto Huron River Drive. Motorists presently have no visibility of sidewalk or road traffic until the vehicle has entered the path of oncoming pedestrian or bicycle traffic. Carney's plan will eliminate this situation.

The cost of the mirrors is estimated at $150.

Puskar has remedy for auto industry's ills

Huron Township Trustee John Puskar would like to see only American cars on the road — and he's got a plan to make it happen.

Puskar suggested that the Huron Township Board of Trustees adopt a resolution suggesting that the federal government offer a $1,000 rebate or tax credit on the purchase of a 100 percent American-made automobile.

"I think this board should spearhead such a resolution to help the Michigan economy," he said. "Let's encourage manufacturers to use American-made steel and all other American-made components," he added.

Puskar explained that he felt a federal income tax credit on American cars would deter the amounts of Japanese steel imported for the manufacture of American cars and help the sagging Michigan economy by enticing buyers away from foreign imports. "A 50 percent American made car would get a 50 percent rebate," he suggested.

He did not include raw materials in his proposal, as in many cases, the only source of certain items is non-American.

"Let's get this resolution drafted, take it to the governor and have him take it to the federal government. I'd like to see this township spearhead something like this," he said.

The board agreed to allow Puskar to draft such a resolution with the help of the township attorney, and present it at the next regular board meeting.

CARL WHITE

Local youth is selected for European tour band group

Romulus's talented Carl White has been selected for membership in the American Musical Ambassadors Band. This highly select concert band, composed of outstanding high school and university students from all over the United States and Canada, will tour several European countries for three weeks in July and August.

Carl, son of Mr. and Mrs. David White Sr. of Romulus, is a member of the Romulus Senior High School band directed by Henry James.

Professor Maxine Lefever, an assistant director with the Purdue University Bands and director of the AMA tour, has announced that Lt. Col. Dale Harpham (U.S. Marine Band, ret.) and Professor David Catron of Michigan State University will serve as conductors for the 1982 tour.

The tour group will visit and perform in Paris, Lucerne, Lugano, Milan, Venice, Innsbruck, Salzburg, Berchtesgaden, Wiesbaden, Amsterdam, Windsor and London.

Highlights of the tour will include concerts in the concert halls and parks of Europe.

Students will visit many sites of musical and historical importance as well as the popular tourist attractions.

The purpose of the tour is to foster cultural and personal relationships between students of the U.S. and the people of Europe.

In past years students of the AMA tours, through their high standards of musical excellence and equally high standards of personal excellence, have indeed served as fine representatives of American youth and as ambassadors of good will through their music for audiences throughout Europe.

'The Giving Tree'

You've heard about the lemon tree, well there's a "giving tree" growing each day in the National Bank of Detroit offices on Main Street in Belleville. And the tree is blossoming gifts for the needy thanks to GFWC Belleville Junior Study Club which came up with the idea of decorating the tree with valuable ornaments that may be traded to any local person who brings in a suitable, wrapped gift to be given to a needy child. The gift need not be expensive, just suitable so that a needy child in this area will have a small gift for Christmas. Members voted to leave the tree in the bank lobby until Dec. 16 when the gifts would be distributed. Pictured around the decorated tree are Connie Etter, from the Belleville Junior Study Club (from left), Delphine Dudick and Rosita Vance—all members of the study club.

McNamara urges area suburbs to join water rate increase battle

A court ruling against Southeastern Michigan suburbs in the long standing dispute with the Detroit Water Board "definitely should be appealed," Livonia Mayor Edward H. McNamara said today.

Mayor McNamara, who has led the fight since 1975 against discriminatory rates charged to 96 suburban communities which buy their water from Detroit, declared that, "We continue to regard the imposition of higher water rates for non-Detroit residents, who pay two-thirds of the total revenue for this vital service, as unnecessary, unfair and illegal."

The decision, rendered by Wexford County Circuit Judge William R. Peterson, asserted that "this court cannot say that the rate of return on extra-city sales...was unreasonable when the evidence showed rates in excess thereof being allowed to regulated utilities in Michigan during the same period."

The judge declared further that "the fixing of such rates is a legislative matter with which the courts will not interfere unless the plaintiff shows that the rate determination was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable."

The ruling, according to McNamara, "overlooks the inherent injustice of a 35% rate increase amounting to $14 million per year voted by the four Detroit commissioners in 1975. At that time, the water budget showed a $15 million surplus, and a balanced budget was passed by the board without the necessity of a rate increase."

Mayor McNamara was the Wayne County Suburban representative on the Water Board until he was fired on October 2, 1975 by Mayor Coleman Young for criticizing Water Board policies.

Following Mayor Young's termination of his appointment to the Board, Mayor McNamara enlisted the support of more than 90 suburban communities to file a class action suit challenging Detroit's action in establishing water rates on a "utility basis" which includes a "return on investment" — or profit — in establishing rates.

The suit sought to require the Detroit Metropolitan Water Department to develop rate-making standards for future rate increases, claiming that the 1976 rate increase was unnecessary and represented overcharges to suburban users.

"Despite this legal setback," Mayor McNamara declared "we are determined to establish our right to purchase water at a fair price and we will immediately look into the costs and prospects of an appeal to a higher court."

For this reason, I am convening a meeting in mid-December of all mayors and executives of the 96 suburban communities to report fully on the judge's decision and to discuss our next course of action."

'They're all wet'

Residents complain about flooded basements

There are a number of Huron Township residents who are "all wet" — and they are none too happy about the situation.

Appearing at the regular meeting of the Huron Township Board of Trustees Nov. 24, many township residents informed the board members of the serious flooding problems they are experiencing in their homes. The residents complained of flooded conditions nearly year-round and were particularly concerned; they stated, with the unsanitary conditions the standing water caused.

Their complaints followed closely on the heels of a regularly scheduled bid opening for cleaning of a portion of the Hand Drain, which apparently further distressed the crowd, composed mainly of residents in the Silver Creek and Odette Drain areas of the township, who were concerned that cleaning of the Hand Drain might further increase the water flow through their property.

The proposed cleaning of the Hand, explained Township Engineer Jerry Jarrett, should provide "some relief" to residents of the Silver Creek Drain area as the removal of 183 inches of silt and debris from the bottom of the Hand Drain would facilitate much faster runoff of water into the Silver Creek.

"By the time the water from up above drains into the Silver Creek, the water from the Hand will have drained off and passed on down," Jarrett explained. "And if water should back up, the cleaned-out Hand will have the capacity to act as a natural detention reservoir to hold the water until drainage is possible, providing some relief to everyone involved," the engineer added.

The cleaning of the Hand is expected to cost the township approximately $20,000 if only the bottom sediment is removed as Jarrett has specified. If, however, damage is done to any of the retaining side slopes of the drain, replacement of damaged areas could increase the cost dramatically. Jarrett explained that he had designed the cleaning procedures after walking sections of the 550 acres of drain area and attempting to clean portions of it himself to insure that the bottom could be cleaned with no damage to the sides.

"This is only a small sliver of drain we're doing but it could provide relief for the residents for $20,000. That's a nominal fee," Jarrett contended.

Trustee William Geierman requested an estimate on cost should the sides of the Hand need work as he stated his intent to earmark enough block grant funding to cover the expense should any unforeseen complications arise. Jarrett estimated a maximum $40,000 charge for the cleaning.

The Silver Creek Drain area residents were reluctant to accept Jarrett's explanation and insisted that their area might be adversely affected by the proposed cleaning of the Hand. They cited the malfunction of plumbing facilities and the constant water beneath their homes as reasons the board should consider the cleaning of the drain in their area as opposed to Hand. Some residents demanded to know the whereabouts of the taxes they claimed to have paid for the cleaning and maintenance of the drain system over the past several years.

Township supervisor Richard Sullivan explained that township residents have paid no taxes whatever for the cleaning or maintenance of the drains to the township.

"There is no money collected by this township for that purpose. We never even saw it. The drain commissioner gets a small percentage of the money from county taxes to maintain his office. Any maintenance or cleaning he does is billed right back to the people. We can't even ask him to look at the drains without paying a fee," Sullivan explained.

"This is the first time I have heard of your problems with the Silver Creek Drain or with the Odette Drain. Each year we have a public hearing on the useage of the block grant money we receive from the federal government. We do that to establish priorities for the use of that money. If you have problems, come to that meeting and let us know."

"Perhaps even this year, if we have funds left over from the cleaning of the Hand we can attempt to clean the blocked portions of the Silver Creek and Odette for you."

"The hearings on our block grant funds are in January and February, let us know then what you need," he told the residents.

Jarrett further explained to the crowd that the area in question was in floodplain and no real cleaning of the drainage system had been implemented in 30 years.

"Nobody is going to fool you — not this board or anybody else — this area floods and we have a poor drainage system. It would take radical measures to alter that," Jarrett said. "It's a million dollar project."

The engineer advised the residents to petition the drain commissioner to examine and repair their property drains, but cautioned them that it would be at their own expense.

Many protested in unison that they had contacted the office of the drain commissioner but that, even when they were successful in obtaining an examination of their property, they were instructed to approach the township board for a letter to the commissioner, Charles Youngblood, requesting the cleaning.

Sullivan explained that such a letter suggesting the cleaning could be interpreted as a request from the township and would obligate the disbursement of township funds for the cleaning.

"A study, mind you, just a study, of our drains 15 years ago got this township a bill for $75,000 which we are still fighting in court," he reminded the residents.

The homeowners were further distressed by the blockage of several natural and man-made drains within the township which had been covered over by farmers in their plowing or by residents installing driveways or performing other construction. They cited repeated examples of this type of drainage interference which they felt were contributing to their problems of standing water.

Trustee Gary Bates suggested that the engineer be instructed to investigate these smaller drain impedences and determine whose responsibility they might be. "Let's find a means of assessing these blockages and try to clean them," he suggested.

The board agreed to instruct the engineer to undertake such an investigation, specifically of the troubled areas the residents identified and to report at the next meeting on the possibility of clearing these smaller areas.

"Your best bet is still to contact the office of the drain commissioner, get a petition for the cleaning of your drains, get it signed, and get him out here to study it," Sullivan reminded the crowd. "But he will assess the cost to you."

"In the meantime, we'll see what the engineer has to say at our next meeting about the three major areas you've identified," Sullivan concluded.

The board agreed to reject the sole bid on the cleaning of the Hand Drain and to readvertise for bids on the job.

Schools to offer naval training

Do you want to become a U.S. Naval officer?

You may not have to go as far as the Annapolis Naval Academy to do so.

Romulus School Board President Michael Wood directed the administration to check with high school students to determine if interest exists in forming a Naval Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps.

This action took place after a presentation to the board by LT. Commander William Dyer from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

Both boys and girls would be eligible to join at age 14.

There is no obligation to enter the U.S.

Navy after graduation, but those students who do complete the three year program may enlist at the advanced pay grade of E-3 (Seaman) which is a head start toward future promotions and pay raises.

Appointments to the Naval Academy and ROTC college scholarships are also available to outstanding NJROTC cadets.

The Navy will provide all books, drill rifles, training aids and equipment needed for the Naval Science courses, including uniforms.

Funds are provided for the Navy's portion of NJROTC instructors' salaries, transportation for the field trip/cruise program, uniform alterations and maintenance, and even miscellaneous items such as office supplies and postage.

The goal of the program is to give teen-agers a head start in developing citizenship, leadership, teamwork, and high standards of personal conduct and appearance.

mands are to be prepared on a form prescribed by Council and presented to the Council for approval. This prescribed form is also to be signed by the Mayor and countersigned by the Clerk."

Cantrell said he had met with Mayor Oakley to discuss the accounts payable function shortly after the Nov. 3 elections. He said that the mayor had expressed an interest in relocating this particular duty to the Finance Department and "wanted to know which of my employees I wanted to have relocate with this duty."

"My response was that I wished my employee, as well as the Accounts Payable function to remain as is," Cantrell stated. "I was informed at that time that Accounts Payable would be relocated with or without my concurrence."

Cantrell stressed that "in my judgment, this is a direct conflict with the City Charter as well as interference with the duties of a union employee."

"I don't want to spend the next two years offering arguments why this or that function should remain where it is," Cantrell concluded. "I look forward to working with the mayor, but I also have taken an oath of office to enforce the city charter and I'm going to do so."

Are you a teen-ager looking for a job?

County seeks trainees for horticultural work

Area teen-agers who are unemployed and can meet certain income requirements may be able to find employment through the Horticultural Program of the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service.

Teens must be residents of Wayne County, excluding the cities of Livonia, Dearborn and Detroit, and be between the ages of 16 and 19 years. They can be handicapped, ex-offenders, in school or out of school.

Through the program, which pays teens $3.50 per hour, the young people will receive training in horticulture vocational skills, employability skills such as interviewing, resume writing and reading want ads, foundation skills such as consumerism, buying cars and insurance and legal rights and participate in personal and group counseling. The youths also will be involved in horticulture-related work experience, which involve maintaining the greenhouses and grounds of the 26-acre Extension and Education Center on Venoy Road in Wayne. Trainees will plan and implement public demonstration projects throughout the year as part of the work experience.

For those in the program and still in school, work hours will be 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays and 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturdays for 18 weeks. Those out of school will work from 10:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday and from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday for 12 weeks.

According to program manager Gary

Greenwell, participants should be strongly motivated and willing to accept challenges. He added that all trainees are expected to go into regular employment at the end of their training and stressed that the program is not interested in those "looking for an easy temporary job."

Now in its third year, the horticulture-work study program usually looks for participants in early February. However, this year the hirings have been moved to December in hopes that several groups of trainees can be ready for employment prior to the beginning of the horticultural industry's early spring hiring.

Greenwell added that the program has changed over to a modular learning system, with each subject to be presented in weekly units. With that structure, participants will be able to leave the program to pursue other opportunities, and new trainees can begin at any point in the program and still learn all the units.

According to Greenwell, the program has something else new about it. It's expanded. In 1981, it enrolled 58 trainees and had a very successful job placement and positive termination rates. This coming year, it hopes to work with 112 teens.

To meet the diverse learning needs of the groups of trainees, trainee supervisors will be added. The best graduates of the program will be given the opportunity to stay with the program longer and become supervisors while receiving management training, added responsibility and a pay increase.

Greenwell added that four other youth programs in the out-county area are working together cooperatively this year to ensure the quality of service and provide as many options and opportunities as possible for participants.

The program has begun the hiring of its first 38 trainees, who start in the program on Dec. 14. Interested teens can contact Greenwell at 721-6550, ext. 233, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays, and as soon as possible.

Those teens who cannot meet the age minimum requirement for the first group, can ask to be placed on a waiting list for possible enrollment later in the year.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Ernest Sorini is chief of Emergency Room Services at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne. By DR. ERNEST SORINI

Back in the '50s and '60s, the "idiot box" referred to the television set whose one-eyed stare mesmerized children and adults nightly. Over the 30 or so years since the television was introduced, it has become somewhat of a way of life, an aberrant family member which requires a disproportionate amount of time, akin to a family pet with a terminal illness like distemper.

It has been estimated that every man, woman, and child in America watches about 30 hours of television a week; this amounts to about 1,500 hours a year — or about as much time as it would take to earn a college degree, read an entire volume of encyclopedias, or even finish a course on television repair.

In 1,500 hours it would be possible for the average person to become proficient in playing a musical instrument, and the gifted person might even become proficient at leading an orchestra.

If all these interesting and challenging feats could be accomplished in lieu of the supposed cultural lobotomy which television watching represents, why do so many people continue to be enchanted nightly by the idiot box in the '80s?

Part of the answer probably lies in the fact that it is much less stressful to observe the game than to take part in it. Playing requires active thought, ingenuity and planning. Television watching demands nothing more of the viewer than wakefulness which, in light of the content of many of the modern-day television programs, is quite a feat indeed.

But it must be even more than a reluctance to actively participate which keeps millions of Americans "beswitched" before the talkie-tube nightly — we Americans are by tradition "dreamers," and the television, like sleep, allows us to dream without really trying. (Moreover, it is one of the only forms of dreaming which allows us to eat and drink at the same time without getting our beds and couches all messed up.)

Numerous medical studies have proven that dreaming is one of the methods whereby the human organism copes with the stresses of daily living.

And anyone who has seen the recent Extra Strength Tylenol commercial knows that "life got tougher."

I suppose that in the future medical studies will demonstrate that television watching is merely "dreaming while awake," and even though it may accomplish nothing as challenging as getting us through the encyclopedia, it may help some of us to navigate the choppy seas of everyday living.

So the next time you're wife, mother, girlfriend, or "significant other" tells you that you're spending much too much time in front of the television set, remind them that health comes first, and that you are really dreaming as you watch the latest episode of "The Dukes of Hazard" or "Dallas."

Storage fields filled

Mich Con ready for winter

Michigan Consolidated Gas Company today announced that its Michigan gas storage fields are full and ready to meet the needs of its residential and industrial customers during the 1981-82 heating season.

The storage fields located in St. Clair, Montcalm, Mecosta and Gratiot counties have a capacity of 151 billion cubic feet and give Michigan a unique advantage in energy availability.

Storage fields are usually porous rock formations, depleted of the oil and natural gas which they once held and re-engineered so that gas can be pumped into them during summer months and then withdrawn during periods of peak demand in the winter to supplement supplies coming in from other sources.

"This is just one of Michigan's many natural resources which continues to provide a benefit to the residents and businesses located in the state," said Maurice Day, Senior Vice President, Gas Supply Operations, Engineering and Construction for the utility.

Day went on to say that Michigan Consolidated does not foresee any circumstances this winter in which the Company would have to curtail service due to a supply shortage.

Sumpter's volunteer corps

In an age where people do not like to get involved, there are some who will roll up their sleeves and go out of their way to help those who can't help themselves. This Sumpter Township group earned recognition recently from the Out-Wayne County Human Services division for donating their time to help seniors by transporting county-financed meals to them. The group was presented "Service Awards" by the county agency which honored them at a special luncheon. Recipients of the citations included Jean Sulkey (from left) who holds on to one end of the citation, while at the other end is Ernest Michling, a volunteer. Sandwiched between the two is Ruth Duey, township treasurer who represented township supervisor James Reeves. Also flashing smiles and awards are Pearl Michling, Mathila Smith, Perletha Lewis and J.B. Lewis.

Senior citizens to continue 'NETWORK' of information

A federal Title III grant for Senior Citizen information and Referral in the 34 Out-Wayne County communities was recently awarded for a second year to the Downriver Citizens, Inc. (DCO), the Redford Township Senior Citizens Department and the Romulus Help Center.

The grant will allow all three agencies to continue to work together to provide information and referral services to senior citizens.

The Downriver Citizens Office will continue to serve as the administrative agency of the NETWORK.

"In the past, the three agencies have concentrated on programs such as nutrition, minor home repair and tax assistance for senior citizens," said Al Shelly, Director of Romulus Help Center.

"Through the Senior NETWORK the agencies work together to find new resources and maintain up-to-date information about existing programs.

"This kind of service will be increasingly important to the community as many agencies must cut back their services in the coming months," Shelly continued.

Senior citizens needing information about available services should contact their local Senior NETWORK site. The Romulus Help Center services the communities of Romulus, Belleville and Huron, Sumpter and Van Buren Townships.

Senior citizens can visit the center at 35085 Goddard in Romulus, or call 941-7970.

Our Opinions

Proposed gun law should be banned

There are ominous perils in Senate Bill No. 293 — a proposed gun law — that is the brainchild of one Senator Jackie Vaughn of Detroit. Vaughn is proposing a bill that "would prohibit the discharge of firearms by peace officers under certain circumstances and to prescribe penalties."

The proliferation of the use of guns by criminals, despite strict laws on the books today, rules out the rationale behind Vaughn's proposed law. Under his bill, a police officer could discharge a firearm only to save himself or herself, or another person from being grievously injured or killed."

The officer would not be able to fire a warning shot and if the officer shot and killed a fleeing felon, the officer could be sentenced to life imprisonment.

It is regrettable in this day and age when the courts have already given the criminal an edge by ordering police officers to follow strict rules and regulations so that "due process" isn't violated, that senators like Vaughn would inflict yet another handicap upon our law enforcement agencies.

We understand where Vaughn is coming from. We understand that in some European countries and in the England of a decade ago police officers were not permitted to carry firearms, but the criminal mentality in this country of late has increasingly resorted to the use of guns. Their philosophy has been, it appears, "kill any witnesses to make sure no one is left behind to testify."

And, against this mentality we would make our law enforcers impotent?

Vaughn says he grew up in the inner city, in the jungle, as some would say. Apparently and somehow miraculously he escaped that jungle with little harm. The law of the jungle has always been the "survival of the fittest."

There will always be criminals who for one reason or other will use their trigger finger first and ask no questions. We would prefer to see the man society hires to protect us "faster on the draw."

Vaughn has been away from the jungle too long.

Maybe his constituents should send him back to experience the fears that many of the elderly, the young, and weak, the lawabiding live with daily.

Carter for President? Jimmy sure looks good

The prime interest rate is finally spinning downward and in the minds of most political and economical observers that's the best news in nearly two decades. The country, they offer, is going through a profound change and with that change, the experts say, we will find inflation and interest rates at a "livable level."

However, what most of these experts won't tell you is that with that structural economical change, most of us are without jobs and don't give a damn what the interest or inflation rates are.

The trouble with this economy is that it may wipe out inflation, but it also wiped out the job market. If this trend continues, three years from now there will be a Democrat in the White House. Even if we have to bring back Jimmy and Billy Carter.

Another viewpoint

Property tax article gave distorted view

An article appearing in the November 19 edition of the Associated Newspapers' Westland Eagle ("House clears bill easing property tax burden") gives a distorted view of the so-called property tax plan pushed through the House recently.

Contrary to Representative Tom Brown's assertion, this bill is not "good, responsible property tax relief."

Granted, it would expand the circuit breaker for people who are already receiving property tax relief by about $60 a person if the economy picks up.

But it ignores the other 44 percent of Michigan homeowners who don't get any relief right now and continue to have no hope of property tax relief under this Democratic plan.

The bill also would require that relief through the circuit breaker be "frontloaded". In other words it would guarantee that property tax rebates arrive before the tax bill is due.

It's a sound idea and one I and my Republican colleagues have long supported.

But the Treasury Department, the Director of Management and Budget, and even the House Democratic staff advised legislators that it is simply too late in the year to attempt to "front load." Democrats in the House have pushed it through anyway.

By insisting this feature be part of their phony property tax proposal, they are risking delays in revenue sharing payments to cities, delayed school aid payments to financially strapped districts, and a $15 million interest bill of the state because of late payments. I wouldn't call any property tax plan "good" and "responsible" if it jeopardizes our children's education and our cities' smooth functions.

Incidentally, the article failed to mention that senior citizens can already get property tax rebates before they pay their February tax bill under existing law.

The fundamental problem with the House Democratic property tax plan is that nearly half the homeowners in the state wouldn't get any relief at all. The measure also permits "double dipping" by welfare recipients who pay property taxes or rent with general assistance funds and then receive a rebate for those taxes from the state. I strongly supported an amendment to eliminate this practice but the Democrats refused to consider it. If they had, there would have been more money available for legitimate tax relief for more people.

I believe the Legislature has a responsibility to reduce the burden of property taxes in this state. The Democrats will try to make you believe they've carried out that responsibility. I say they have deliberately misled the people of Michigan, and all of you will know that when you receive your property tax bill next month.

Loser is a winner

By TOM MOORADIAN
Managing Editor

Steve Sheldon obviously isn't one of those "misguided youths" we hear so much about these days.

However, I am the first to admit that when the Belleville car salesman marched into the newsroom he reeked of "sour grapes." He had lost an election and he was alleging foul play.

Sheldon finished fourth in a field of four candidates seeking two seats on the Belleville City Council in last month's election. When all the counting was over, the first-time candidate boldly expressed that there had to be a malfunction in a gear on one of the voting machines at City Hall.

Obviously, few believed him. Like most, they politely listened to his complaint and filed it in their "sour grapes" basket. Nevertheless, Sheldon pursued his complaint right up to the doors of the Wayne County Clerk's Office.

And, last week, as only Sheldon expected, the county officials verified that yes, indeed, the counter on the voting machine didn't register.

"This is the first time in nearly three decades that a machine had malfunctioned," according to R.J. O'Neil, Belleville custodian in charge of voting machines.

Sheldon reacted to this revelation with a sigh of relief.

"We finally found out what's going on," he commented. "And now we can move on to solving the problem."

And how do you solve a problem like this — demand another election? Void the results of the tabulation on voting machine? Or just bite your tongue and wait till the next time?

Sheldon says he "will somehow find an adequate vote total at the least expense to the taxpayer. A new election would be the last resort."

A Belleville resident for the past five years, Sheldon is employed as a new car salesman for John Elden Chevrolet in Belleville. He spent some time with the Armed Forces overseas, and found time to earn his high school diploma in Kubsaki, Japan. He also attended classes at Eastern Michigan University and Washtenaw Community College.

"I got interested in politics because I'm interested in people and the community," Sheldon said. "I didn't think I would get involved in a controversy like this, although I must admit I am enjoying every bit of it."

Is he finding any resentment coming from those he questioned?

"No, not really. People around here are naturally nice. And they are as happy as I am to discover what we did. But, again I feel we should and must work out what we feel is a practical and economical solution to this awkward situation. My attorney, Henry Ritchie, and I will attend the next City Council meeting to discuss this with them."

What led Sheldon to become suspicious of the now notorious voting machine?

"Well," he replied, "I asked several of my friends — people whom I was sure wouldn't lie to me — if they had indeed voted for me, and then asked them what machine they voted on."

"They replied that they voted for me on voting machine No. 2 and when No. 2 only registered two votes for me, it just didn't add up." It sure didn't.

What's happening to our hospital services?

by BARNARD F. HILLENBRAND

In 1978 the nation boasted 1,905 public general hospitals. The facilities serve as family doctor to indigents, offer medical training, conduct research and feature myriad specialties from burn units to rape crisis programs.

Their numbers are dwindling fast. Most are owned by local governments, usually counties, whose responsibility for these services is rooted in the 18th century charity ward, the dreaded "provider of last resort" for the sick, mad or senile.

Today this legal responsibility is reinforced by vague references in statutes of 47 states. Even Medicaid and Medicare have done little to reduce the enormous cost. And though it has nothing to do with owning a home or paying property tax, by 1980 the nation's counties were spending 22.3 percent of their income trying to meet health needs of the poor. It is an impossible task.

Faced with 12.6 percent inflation in health care, unemployment, an aging population, outmoded hospital facilities and taxpayer revolt, some rural and urban counties are trying to divest themselves of this enormous financial drain — or at least define its scope — before they go bankrupt.

The prospect is real. As the federal government pulls out of the health care business, as Medicaid lags, the population served by these institutions increases — along with bad debt.

In Virginia, for example, state officials plan to take 50,000 more of the "working poor," and 12,000 children, off Medicaid. Local governments will still be liable for their care, and these days a single bill can total millions.

One way counties have responded is to close, sell or lease hospitals, nursing homes or other health facilities to private management companies.

Dr. Arnold S. Relman, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, calls it the "medical-industrial complex," this huge business whose six largest companies ended 1980 with a combined revenue of $6.8 billion.

They are expected to expand to four times that by 1986, and their stock is considered among the best investments: last year stock prices for the five largest companies doubled. According to the trade press, public facilities are specifically targeted for acquisition.

Approximately a third of all American hospitals are owned or managed by private companies, but no one knows exactly how many former public hospitals have been closed, sold or leased to date. A 1980 survey documented 150 former public hospitals. The largest chain, Hospital Corporation of America (HCA), has 53.

Because of the combined impact of "proposition 13," and Medi-Cal, some health planners look to California to assess future losses nationwide: In the mid-60's, 49 California counties had one or more hospitals. Today only 29 are in the hospital business. Of those, 14 have had management contracts. Six subsequently terminated agreements.

"In my opinion," Relman has written, "growth of this industry is the most important recent development in American health care, an unprecedented phenomenon with broad and potentially troubling implications for the future of our medical care system." Indigent care is not the only issue, critics of the movement are also worried about the potential for fraud, overuse of technology and the financial relationship between doctors and corporations.

In a June, 1978 speech to the American Hospital Association (AHA), then Sen. Richard S. Schweiker (R-Pa.) noted the trend by saying "One of the motivations for consolidation is political and economic clout. The clout will be held by fewer decision-makers who will be less accountable to the marketplace and to the local communities."

Schweiker, now secretary of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), has made a dramatic shift. He espouses less regulation. He wants to let competition determine prices and services.

Some questions for Detro

EDITOR—After attending the Romulus City Council meeting on November 24, I have some questions for Detro Recovery Products, Inc., the company that wants to build a sludge plant in this city.

Why, other than for a psychological reason to win supporters for its side, would Detro advertise for employees to work in their plant when construction of a plant could not begin for some time in the future?

In fact, full approval for locating their plant in Romulus has not been given, so it is not certain at this time that a plant will ever be built.

Why can't you or why don't you present an independently produced report on the environmental impact of a sludge composting plant on the Community?

You have already spent a great deal of money transporting the public to Beltsville, Maryland and in other ways, so money should not be a factor. It would be to your benefit to produce such a report if it is possible.

Can you guarantee that there will be no danger of bacterial disease or that no offensive odor will emit from the plant?

Why Romulus as a plant site? If you must choose Romulus, why must you choose a site in the heart of the city—directly behind City Hall? Why are you using the hard sell on Romulus?

If your plant is truly good for Romulus, why aren't other communities competing for you to build in their towns?

In the best interests of the City of Romulus, I implore Detro to publicly answer these questions to clear up the unease and fear which the term "sludge plant" brings to mind.

Don't knock new administration

EDITOR—May I please respond to councilman-elect Kenneth Mehl's recent letter that appeared in the Letters to the Editor box of the Associated Newspapers?

Since the November 3 election, Mr. Kenneth Mehl stresses that he will work for those who have supported him and for the welfare of the entire city. Very noble.

I wonder if Mr. Mehl has access to a book that indicates who did and who did not vote for him?

I would hope he would represent all the people and not hold it against the others who did not.

I believe that he, as an elected council person, should be honored to be elected, but also give the other newly elected officials a chance. All your editorials have been negative instead of supportive of the new administration.

In your last editorial to this newspaper, November 19th issue, you mentioned not to knock Tom Brown. Mr. Mehl, no one is knocking anyone, but you! I also agree it is unfortunate to "mudrake" candidates, instead of promoting their issues.

I feel enough is said about qualifications, salaries, benefits, unemployment, etc.

Let's take a look at our fine city and the people who are serving us. Mr. Mehl, be supportive of your new administration and the citizens who did not vote for you.

I feel the people will always respect Mr. Brown, as I do.

But, I feel we needed a change, a change I hope you will accept, support and set aside your personal differences. For you, Mr. Mehl, are also considered part of the new administration.

Last chance for tax relief

EDITOR—In the next few days in the Michigan State Senate I will offer an amendment to HB 4250 that will provide the last chance for homeowners to obtain property tax relief this year.

My amendment gives a tax credit on all homesteads for the amount 1981 taxes increased over 1980 taxes. It will, in effect, freeze your 1981 homestead taxes at their 1980 level exclusive of additional millage and new construction. You will still be eligible for your regular homestead property tax credit.

This is not the best method of property tax relief, nor is it enough. Property taxes are already too high and are going to increase dramatically because of inflation and a new law called "equalization by class." The increase alone in residential and agricultural property assessments this year exceeds $6.8 billion. In some parts of the state, taxes will double and even triple this year.

If you want to offset your homestead property tax increase this year, it is essential that you contact your state senator. My amendment was rejected in the Finance Committee along strict party lines and has no chance of success on the floor unless you make your wishes known. Republicans stand ready to support my amendment but Democrats control both houses of the legislature.

With your help, we can swing the necessary Democrat votes needed to obtain long overdue property tax relief.

The Governor and the legislature promised the people $250 million tax relief with Proposal A—almost exactly the relief my amendment offers. By cutting back on welfare benefits to single, healthy, childless individuals and establishing proper priorities, the state can more than make up the cost of my proposal.

Some of us have fought for years to give property tax relief. Some of us are still fighting. Regrettably, it is not going to happen this year unless a lot of people tell Lansing they have had enough.

JACK WELBORN
State Senator

Concerns about law enforcement

EDITOR—I write this letter as a concerned 58-year-old citizen who has spent his entire life living in Western Wayne County, being raised in the Belleville area until recently. I now live in Romulus and I am not a law enforcement officer.

Since growing up in the area over the years I have observed numerous police agencies. (It. blue, dark blue, black, white, brown, green and even red police cars; It. blue, dark blue, black, brown and white uniforms). All going in different directions, each instead of working together to fight crime, they spend more time fighting each other.

In many cases there are too many chiefs and not enough Indians. They all spend the taxpayer's money with no real care or concern for the taxpayer, only what will be the best deal for their little kingdom.

The taxpayer can't take it any more. Our tax dollar isn't to be used to make a few comfortable. It's to give the public the basic services they paid for, and law enforcement is one of them.

The voters on Nov. 3 voted themselves a new Charter for Wayne County. One of its provisions allows the Sheriff Department to contract for police services to any local government that wants them.

I would ask the Mayor along with the newly elected city council to lead the way and enter into a contract with the sheriff department and for other communities to do the same. Let's give the taxpayer a fair shake for their money. Take the politics out of law enforcement.

Your job as elected officials is to provide the best services for the least amount of money and one police agency serving Wayne County is far better than many.

Freedom in Van Buren?

EDITOR—Where does freedom ring?

After so many people have given "their last full measure of devotion," their lives for freedom, I fear freedom is being suppressed right here in Van Buren Township. A resident gets up and criticizes the township board and is immediately sued!

It can't happen here? It has happened and we, the citizens, must now be awfully careful what we say at a township meeting which was once the hub of freedom-speaking, the democratic way of life.

I ask this question because of a series of events that have taken place in our township over the last month.

Being present, and very much a witness, to what was said or not said, done or not done at the Van Buren Township Board meeting of November 10, 1981, has prompted me to speak out on what I feel is a suppression of a very basic freedom.

This freedom is guaranteed to every man, woman and child living in this democracy. It is guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States of America. The First Amendment promises Freedom of Speech to all.

Not just a chosen few.

Let me first assure you, that no accusing statements were made by Mr. Gerald McKelvey at any time during, before or after this meeting. He is now being sued by a board appointee.

Mr. McKelvey did raise several questions to the board, which they could not, or would not, answer.

These questions, it is my opinion, were twisted out of context to meet the needs of those who may have something to hide.

Question for thought: Why did the board pounce on Mr. McKelvey in defense of Mr. Debbs when Mr. McKelvey addressed the board with his first question?

It seemed as though Mr. McKelvey was put on trial by the township board immediately, for questioning the appointment of Mr. Debbs to the post of Police Commander. A matter which concerns the safety and well-being of the entire township.

Truthfully, I thought that any citizen had the right to question the board on any matter at any time.

I feel that if there is a question about an appointee's character and/or qualifications, a citizen does have the right to question the board.

I think the board then has an obligation to its citizens to totally investigate a person's moral, criminal and psychological background as well as his/her qualifications. The findings should then be made public to insure the citizens that, indeed, the right person has been appointed to the job.

I don't know what qualifications are required for the post of Police Commander, but I would question Mr. Debbs' qualifications simply on the word of our own Police Commissioner Tom Welty. Welty was quoted by a local paper as saying, "I'm not saying he (Debbs) is the best qualified, but I'm recommending him." Welty himself, it would appear, may have some doubt about Mr. Debbs' qualifications.

In closing, I ask: How can a lawsuit be initiated against a citizen for doing his civic duty of questioning his government when all doesn't seem right?

Where does freedom ring? Certainly not in Van Buren Township.

Sumpter official sees 'vendetta'

EDITOR—I, for one, as a member of the Sumpter Township Board of Trustees am rather sick of this vendetta that is taking place against Sharon Pokerwinski. She has suffered the harassment of being followed in and out of the township by the wife of a board member.

I personally picked her up at her home for work one day and because her car was in her driveway she received several telephone calls at the office and when she answered they hung up (obviously checking upon her whereabouts).

Sharon has worked hard for Sumpter Township to obtain grants that otherwise would not be had. She gets "nothing off the top" as others in the past have gotten.

She gets only her salary no matter how large the grant. We all make mistakes in matters of discretion. There is not one employee in the Sumpter Township hall that has not at one time or another "broken" the rules.

"Judge not—lest you be judged." The aura of hate and jealousy among certain people is sad—and so unnecessary.

Sharon is most helpful in helping the elderly fill out Property Tax Credit Forms. She has worked very hard on land splits that previously were not completed.

I personally have seen Sharon be most polite and most helpful to the people of Sumpter Township. She is truly an asset in the Supervisor's office.

Students applaud 'Leaves' author

EDITOR—Recently, we were privileged to have Mr. Ed. Kind, author of "Leaves of Freedom", whose poetry also appears in the Associated Newspapers, visit our school and read his works to several groups of children.

I cannot recall a more delightful experience for our students and, I believe, in large part it was because the poetry and the man himself are equally brilliant.

All great acting, all great oratory, are measured in terms of how well they project reality and sincerity and beauty. Ed Kind is all of these things. And, without devices of any sort, he fills the room with excitement, pathos, joy and hope—and truth!

It would be well if those moments we so highly cherish could be shared with children everywhere.

Scout coverage, editor were great

EDITOR—May I say "thank you" to your news editor, Mrs. Sue McDonald, for the excellent coverage before and after the 1981 annual meeting and Recognition Dinner of the Tonquish District of the Detroit Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Mrs. McDonald's well-written reviews of the event will hopefully bear fruit in the lives of the boys of the community.

Further, she also demonstrated well in the article that good news, which is a rarity it seems these days, is also news.

Please share with Lothar Konietzko, the ANP chief photographer, our gratitude for his eye-catching photographs. Mr. Konietzko and Mrs. McDonald took time from their already busy schedules to share the evening with the Scout leaders of the district in the interest of the boys.

Deception

*Deception is the greatest hurt
Inflicted by another,
The wounds it leaves are so engrained
One scarcely can recover.*

*Once deception weaves its web
It goes beyond intent
Reaching those that play no part
In treacheries' event.*

*You must build trust to have it work
With loves revealed affection
Concealing any evidence Leading to detection.*

*Devious as its nature shows
It chooses carefully
Those who try the easy way
To gain unlawfully.*

*It's a simple matter to deceive
But, that's deceptions way
It gives you all the time you need
To lead yourself astray.*

*Then when your schemes are satisfied
In all that you receive,
You've become deceptions victim
In your own plans to deceive.*

Reflections

The subject is psychic

One of the things that fascinates me as I write and lecture on psychic phenomena is how few people who are into it now, realize that the sciences of psychology and parapsychology were once intimately connected.

Great pioneers as Freud, Jung, and William James did valuable work on extra-sensory perception, and it seems sad to me that much of that early work is greatly ignored by those investigating the psychic world today.

William James did a great deal of research on "survival" and it is interesting that this great thinker of the 1800's believed that there was scientific evidence of immortality.

And although his work on immortality had not been read by the young scientist who called one day recently to tell of his experience, I found that my knowledge of that work helped the young man to accept what had happened to him a few days before.

He had been sitting in his bedroom studying, thinking of nothing but the contents of the book he was reading, when a slight movement across the room caught his eye. He glanced up and saw a brilliant white streak, which slowly molded itself into a form. As he watched he found himself becoming fearful, and he would have leaped from the room, except the only way out would have been through that light.

"I've been studying too hard," he told himself, but he couldn't relax, for the form was becoming identifiable.

"It's my father," the young scientist said. His father had been dead for several years, and while he had mourned his passing, still he had not been thinking of him that evening while studying.

"Father?" he asked as the form came toward him, arm outstretched and a smile on its face. The form nodded and came nearer.

"Do you want to tell me something?" the young man asked. The father smiled and beckoned and then turned toward the door. The scientist stood up and followed, marvelling at how easy he was accepting the fact that the form was indeed his father.

They walked through the hall, the father ahead, and the scientist a few steps behind. Down the stairs they walked, through the dining room and the kitchen and to the basement stairs. The father pointed down and the young man looked through the darkness to the basement. He saw nothing, but the father continued to point down and he turned and flipped on the switch, flooding the basement in light. There crumpled on the floor at the foot of the stairs was his mother, unconscious with blood flowing from a gash on her head.

"I had been so immersed in my studies, I hadn't heard a thing," he told me. "I called an ambulance and we rushed my mother to the hospital where she is coming along fine. It seems she tripped on the stairs and fell to the bottom before she had had a chance to turn on the light. I don't know how long she was there, but my father knew she needed help. So he came and got me.

"If anyone had told me such a story a few weeks ago I would have thought he was freaked out, but I know what happened to me, and I know that it was through the efforts of my father, that my mother didn't die down there at the bottom of those steps, with me upstairs, not too far away."

Have you ever had an experience you've never told anyone else about? Write it to me in care of The Associated Newspapers, Wayne, Michigan.

one seems to know what strutting and sashaying has to do with buying blue jeans. I was hoping you could tell me, being in the business and all.

LS: All I did was make 'em, lady. I didn't have to sell 'em. They sold themselves. Speaking of selling, what do those... other ones... sell for?

MMJ: Oh, anywhere from $35 to $50.

LS: Apiece?

MMJ: Apiece. But listen, Levi, if it makes you feel any better, I wouldn't be caught dead in them...

LS: Apiece?

MMJ: And they've got these other ones called "Chic", except they pronounce it "chick" instead of "sheek" and it drives me crazy... LS: APIECE?!

Mona Grigg

Ms. Mean Jeans and Mr. Strauss

An interview with Levi Strauss, on the last leg of his trip to check out the current jeans scene:

MMJ: Mr. Strauss, when you first invented blue jeans and put your name on the back pocket, were you aware that yours would be the forerunner of the "designer jean"?

LS: Hah! What "designer"? You call those sissy pants jeans? I roll over three times every time someone says "Levi's" in the same breath with those pansy pants. Designer, Blechh! I was a simple San Francisco tailor with a few bolts of good denim. I made pants for the 49ers during the Gold Rush days and they sold like flapjacks. Excuse me, hotcakes. I could hardly keep up.

MMJ: You must have had a fantastic ad agency. I mean, selling them like that without television. How did you spread the word?

LS: What "television"? What "ad agency"? Ever heard of "word of mouth", little lady? I used the toughest cotton, the finest indigo, and — get this — I double-stitched the seams and riveted the pockets. You couldn't wear those things out! MMJ: But if they never wore out, how did you make any money? You must have had to charge a fortune for those jeans, considering they were "limited editions."

LS: I don't know from "limited". All I know is I made good pants cheap. Pretty soon everybody wanted them so I had to hire helpers — but I still sold good pants cheap. I just wish I could have done it without putting my name on the back pocket. Seemed like a good idea at the time.

MMJ: Mr. Strauss, forgive me for being persistent, but I'm still having trouble with "good pants cheap". Didn't you ever hear of "planned obsolescence"? I mean, if you deliberately make things to last, don't you eventually run out of customers? They never have to come back, it seems to me.

LS: Look, little lady, I'm no fool. "Never" is a long time. Of course they came back. If they wore my jeans every day, they could wear them a year, tops. Then they came back. MMJ: 365 days? They could wear them for 365 days straight? C'mon, you're pulling my leg — nothing lasts for 365 days straight. And especially nothing cheap.

LS: All I can say is my pants lasted and you didn't have to strike gold to afford them! Now, let me ask you something! It's about those two — Calvin and Gloria. Ha! That's a laugh! I would feel sorry for a Calvin and a Gloria in the San Francisco of my day. Who are those people, anyway? And how come the people who wear their jeans on television walk so funny?

MMJ: Well, "Calvin" is Calvin Klein, and he's a designer of women's clothing. "Gloria" is Gloria Vanderbilt, a very rich lady who got together with this company named "Murjani" and offered to let them use her name in exchange for a little television exposure. She started out with sheets and worked her way up to jeans. As to the last part of your question — no

ASK THE CHIROPRACTOR

Dear Dr. Ellwart,
Q: When I hurt my back, all I did was get up out of my chair then I could hardly walk. What causes this to happen?
A: The following 4 things contribute to almost 100% of all back injuries (conditions):
1. Fatigue of muscles & ligaments from overuse or over exercise, resulting in weakening of muscles & ligaments (which hold the vertebrae in place) thus allowing vertebrae to slip or change position.
2. Lack of good mechanical support for the spine, or BAD POSTURE. This also causes more tension & fatigue to the muscles & ligaments as they are trying to hold the vertebrae in place despite the poor mechanical position.
3. Outside influences, such as falls, accidents or sudden severe strain.
4. Pathological changes, such as arthritis, tumors, bone fractures etc.; but these contribute least of back injuries (conditions).
Your Doctor of Chiropractic is a specialist of the spine. He not only knows the mechanical structure of the spine, but spinal misalignments affect other parts of the body as well. The important thing is to have your Chiropractor examine you, and give you a proper evaluation of your condition, and then proceed to correct the problem with Chiropractic care.

MR. AND MRS. FRED C. LUNDE

Lundes observe 60th anniversary

Sixty years of togetherness were totaled up November 20 by Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Lundes of 5 Fifth St., Belleville, residents of this area for the past 35 years.

The celebration for some 80 relatives and friends followed the Nov. 22 morning service at Trinity Episcopal Church of Belleville which included a special marital blessing by The Rev. Bob Schiesler.

Hosted by the Lundes, the reception was under the direction of the Episcopal Church Women who served cookies, tea and coffee.

Greenville, Ohio was the site of the couple's November 20, 1921 marriage after which they spent their first five years in Dayton and Mansfield and then moved to Highland Park where they lived for 20 years before their move to Belleville.

Three children born during those years were Fred H. Lundes, Chief Accountant for the City of Livonia; Mrs. E. R. (Jeanette) Oliver, also of Livonia, and Sue Buchau of Watertown, N. Y. The family tree also includes eight grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Members of Trinity Episcopal Church, Fred and Ina, who are 82 and 81 years of age, respectively, are active members of the September Days and Belleville Area Senior Citizens Clubs. Former members of the business community, they operated the Huron Valley Dairy Company in Belleville and a coin car wash, both on Fifth Street.

Fred, a senior member of the Belleville Kiwanis Club and former club song leader, is still an active sportsman, spending every summer morning on the golf links and the winter A.M.'s at the bowling lanes.

Of their long and happy marriage, a quote from their golden wedding anniversary story is now repeated: their philosophy, they said, is their belief in a 75-75 per cent relationship in order to assure a 100 per cent marriage. Although they've argued all their lives, they've never harbored grudges and believe in a kiss each morning and in the full enjoyment of each day.

Quotes worth quoting...

"An autobiography is an unrivaled vehicle for telling the truth about other people."

Phillip Guedalla said it.

Carrot-Pineapple Cake

What's for dessert? How about a moist and scrumptious Carrot-Pineapple Cake you can make faster than you can say, "What's up, Doc?"

It is delicious served as shown, sprinkled with confectioners sugar, or you may want to try a frosting or glaze. Two are provided for your collection.

Carrot-Pineapple Cake

- 1 package (2-layer size) yellow cake mix or pudding-included cake mix
- 1 package (4-serving size) Jell-O vanilla flavor instant pudding and pie filling
- 4 eggs
- 1/4 cup oil
- 3 cups grated carrots
- 1 can (8 oz.) crushed pineapple in juice, drained
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts (optional)
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Combine cake mix, pudding mix, eggs, oil, carrots, pineapple, nuts, cinnamon and salt in large mixer bowl. Blend; then beat at medium speed of electric mixer for 4 minutes. Pour into greased and floured 10-inch fluted tube pan. Bake at 350° for 50 to 55 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean and cake begins to pull away from sides of pan. Do not underbake. Cook in pan 15 minutes. Remove from pan and finish cooling on rack. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar or frost, if desired.

In high altitude areas, for regular and pudding-included cake mix, use large eggs, add 3/4 cup all-purpose flour and 1/4 cup water; bake at 375°.

Orange Cream Cheese Frosting

- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese
- 2 1/2 cups sifted confectioners sugar
- 1 tablespoon (about) orange juice
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind

Cream butter with cheese until smooth and well blended. Gradually add sugar, alternately with orange juice, beating after each addition until smooth. Add orange rind. Makes 1 1/2 cups.

Lemon Glaze

- 1 tablespoon (about) water
- 1 cup sifted confectioners sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind

Gradually add water to sugar and lemon rind in bowl, blending well. Spread over top of cake and allow to run down sides. Makes 1/2 cup or enough for a cake roll, 8-inch square cake, two 8x4-inch loaf cakes or 10-inch tube or fluted tube cake.

New on the scene

Wendy Marie Lippard

The birth of their fifth child, a daughter, is being announced by David and Cheryl Lippard of 29025 Burning Tree Pl., Romulus.

Making her debut at 12:22 p.m. Nov. 10 at Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti, the infant weighed 6 lbs. — 7 ozs. and measured 20 inches.

Titled "Wendy Marie", she is the new sister of 10-year-old Crystal; Danielle, six; Suzette, three, and Grant, two.

Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Richman of Battle Creek and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lippard of Cape Cod, Mass. Great-grandmother honors go to Mrs. Opal Richman of Battle Creek.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This column is available to all those wishing to announce the birth of their children or grandchildren born in this area or elsewhere. We ask only that there be some connection with Belleville, Romulus, New Boston and the outlying townships. Former residents are invited to send news of their additions as well.)

Christmas workshop held at Home Arts

A former member, Agnes Elliott, was invited to present the program at the November meeting of the Home Arts Club. Using individual kits, which had been assembled by Mildred Baker, the group was instructed in the making of stuffed red and green Christmas wreaths.

Preceding the workshop, the club president Eula Haft conducted a brief business meeting at which 12 members answered roll call. The group was invited to hold its annual holiday party at the home of Mrs. Haft where hand-made and homemade gifts will be exchanged, carrying out a tradition which has proven popular over the years.

Following adjournment, Betty Gott and Elinor Kenyon served German and French apple pie from a table centered with an autumnal arrangement of flowers, leaves and gourds.

By Lee Smith Suburban Living Editor

With that "other" holiday zeroing in on us much too quickly, homemakers will want to lay in their supplies for the baking-and-cooking sessions which lie ahead. And those dismal Saturday mornings or Sunday afternoons (when the weather keeps you indoors or the football games drive you kitchenward) are the perfect time to fill the house with those wonderful chocolatey, spicy, yeasty aromas. You won't have to wait 'til halftime to have your wares sampled either.

Nuts and raisins have been at their lowest price in what seems YEARS and the smarties in the crowd have been stocking up on them as well as the sugar and flour which've been on sale recently.

Since fruit cakes traditionally are made "ahead", we've a no-bake one to pass on to you this week from the Keebler folks. Not only does it read as a simple-to-do cake, but you're economizing by doing away with expensive kilowatt hours.

And following THIS Yuletide confection, be sure to read through the two brunch recipes which came in the mail to us recently.

NO-BAKE FRUIT CAKE

- 1 lb. Keebler Honey Grahams
- 8 ozs. mixed diced candied fruit
- 1 cup chopped pitted dates
- 3/4 cup golden raisins
- 3/4 cup chopped walnuts
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1 can (6 ozs.) evaporated milk
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/4 cup pineapple juice
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup

Roll graham to fine crumbs between sheets of waxed paper. In large bowl, mix all ingredients except milk and water. Gradually add milk-water combo and mix until all crumbs are moistened. Press firmly into a waxed paper-lined 8 1/2 x 4 1/2 x 2 1/2-inch loaf pan. Cover with aluminum foil and refrigerate at least 24 hours. To unmold, invert pan on serving platter, peel off waxed paper and garnish with additional fruits and nuts, if desired.

To glaze: Combine pineapple juice and corn syrup, bring to a boil and immediately brush over fruit cake. Let set, reheat glaze and brush on a second coat. For a larger cake, use 12-oz. can evaporated milk, double all other ingredients except water and press mixture into waxed paper-lined 9-inch tube pan.

This is one of those cakes you'll want to wrap well in foil and tuck away in the freezer for the pre-holiday parties you're planning.

The following casseroles come to readers courtesy Joan Sayre who served them at a recent shower brunch.

CHIPPED BEEF BRUNCH

- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 regular size jar chipped beef

- 14 oz. can artichoke hearts, quartered and drained
- 1/2 cup vermouth

- 1 heaping tablespoon parmesan cheese

- 1 pint sour cream

- blob of oleo

- 1 cup sliced mushrooms (if mushrooms turn you on)

Tear chipped beef into little pieces and saute in butter until it curls and gets a bit frizzly. Add sour cream in one big blob, then vermouth. Not to worry — it looks lumpy but it will blend well. Stir! When smooth, add remainder of ingredients, stir and heat through. Serve over toasted English muffins, garnish with paprika.

Chilled champagne goes great with this dish as does a side of asparagus rolled in thin ham slices heated until warm.

BRUNCH CASSEROLE

- 1/4 cup chopped onion

- 2 tablespoons flour

- 1 cup sharp cheese, shredded

- 6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced

- 2 tablespoons oleo

- 1 1/2 cups milk

- 1 tablespoon parmesan cheese

- 1 1/2 cups potato chips

- 12 slices bacon, fried crisp and crumbled

- 1/2 lb. sliced mushrooms, sauteed

Cook onion in oleo until tender but not brown; blend in flour, then milk and cook, stirring until thickened and bubbly. Stir in cheese and mushrooms.

Grease 10x6-inch casserole. Place in layer of eggs, half the cheese sauce, half the crumbled potato chips, half the bacon and repeat layers. Bake for 15-20 minutes or until hot in a 350 degree oven. Serves six generously. Great with fresh fruit and champagne.

We'll try to include something new and different for your holiday entertaining in the next few weeks. If you've an especially good recipe you'd care to share, send it to Lee Smith, Box 278, Belleville, 48111, and we'll get it in print.

"WOMEN'S WORK" is the kind of story that will get any woman — conservative, liberal, feminist — really riled up and simply because of the injustices heaped upon Domina Drexler, the novel's heroine.

Anne Tolstoi Wallach's tale centers on the 37-year-old, divorced creative director of the Potter Jackson Company, an old-guard agency for whom she's worked for 10 years. Wanting only what the company has awarded men in comparable positions, D.D.'s tale revolves about her efforts to get there and includes many interesting (and equally ambitious) characters who either aid or sabotage her efforts to do so.

The reader will not particularly like Domina, she leaves much to be admired despite her excellent work record. One DOES empathize with her feelings of frustration, however, as she's thwarted in her every effort to move up the ladder — the ladder leading to a senior vice-presidency which, unbeknownst to her, the advertising firm is adamant about rewarding her, or ANY woman.

Although it keeps you angry through most of its 417 pages, "W.W." is one of those books you hate to put down, a novel for every woman who wonders what success costs and what success is worth — and for every man who wonders what today's women really want.

CLEANING UP, FIXING UP, PAINTING?

If you're nodding agreement to the above query, then the following household hints will come in mighty handy, helping to speed up the job and making things just a bit less hectic.

— If you're doing a paint job which will take a couple of days, save time by thoroughly wrapping brushes in several layers of foil and then freezing. Stick them right into the freezer compartment of your refrigerator. Let brushes defrost an hour or more before returning them to the job.

— Put a large plastic bag over your roller pan before pouring the paint in. When you're through, just toss the bag away. No messy clean-ups!

— For easy removal of wallpaper, use equal parts of vinegar and hot water. Dip roller or sponge into solution and wet paper thoroughly. After two applications, the paper should peel off in sheets.

— A new paint brush will last longer and be much easier to clean if it soaks in a can of linseed oil for 12 hours before it is ever used.

— And if you add plaster to water rather than water to plaster, the mixture will be lump-free. You can also slow the hardening of plaster by adding a little vinegar to the mixture.

ON AN AVERAGE DAY IN AMERICA

• Three million people go to the movies on an average day in America. That's way down compared to the peak year of 1946 when 11 million went to the movies each day.

• The average American goes to five movies a year although 35 percent of the adult public says it never or almost never goes to a movie.

• Forty-two percent of American kids walk or ride their bikes to school each day while 38 percent ride a school bus. About 14 percent get a ride, two percent drive and three percent take public transportation.

• If she has only one child, the average mother spends 1.3 hours a day fixing meals or cleaning up after them. If she has five or six kids, her kitchen time increases to 4.1 hours a day.

• The average pregnant woman sleeps two hours more each day than she did before becoming pregnant.

• The average person's feet hit the floor 7,000 times a day — each! Those same average feet swell in the course of the day so that at day's end his or her feet are five percent bigger than they were in the morning. On hot days, they're 10 percent larger.

THE BOTTOM LINE: The best way to keep a secret from an enemy is never to tell it to a friend.

They gathered together last Thursday — here and elsewhere

By MRS. JOSEPH SPRING
699-4021

After having spent the past two months visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Albert and Addie Dolph of Edgar Street, and other members of her family in Michigan, Mrs. Hildur Waters left for her home at Marine, Minn. She was accompanied by her son, Don and wife from Huntingwoods, and her son, Neil and wife from Ann Arbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Wellfare of Alto were holiday guests of the latter's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Palmer of Clarence Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Fulton and family of Bellaire were Wednesday callers on Mrs. Clayton Saunders and other friends in the city. The former's mother, Mrs. Betty Fulton of Clementon, N.J., spent Thanksgiving with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Deering enjoyed holiday dinner with their daughter and husband, Marion and Marvin Dann and family in Saline.

Natalie Gress, a freshman at CMU in Mount Pleasant, spent the holiday weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. LaMarr Gress of West Huron River Drive. They, with their son-in-law and daughter, Mark and Nanette Paladino and baby, Joseph, of Romulus, joined other members of the family for dinner at the home of Mark's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Alexander of Garden City, on Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Evelyn Watson of Shelby, Ohio was a guest this past week of her friend, Mrs. Stella Cox of Liberty Street. The ladies attended the funeral of the former's cousin, Mrs. Harriet Same of Mount Clemens, and were Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Cox of Denton Road.

spent Thanksgiving in Birmingham with the Thornton Hopson family.

Mr. and Mrs. William Graham Jr. of West Bloomfield entertained at a family dinner on Thanksgiving Day. Present from the area were the former's parents, the senior William Gramhams of Liberty Street; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Stabnau and family of Biggs Street, and Mr. and Mrs. James Graham, Scott and Pamela, of Potter Drive.

Dinner and Talent show put on by the Monroe Rainbow Assembly.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. McKelvey of East Huron River Drive entertained members of the family for Thanksgiving dinner. Present were the former's parents, Charles and Florence McKelvey of Bemis Road; the Glenn McKelvey family from Flushing, and the Richard McKelvey family from Romulus.

Ready to 'boogie'

Rehearsing "bugle" calls for their big World War II musical show, "Boogie-Woogie Barbershop" are Wayne residents (first row) Nita Casler and Peg DiBacco, with (second row) Gina Cicciarielli and Judy Johnson, Romulus. They are members of the We-Way-Co Chapter of the Sweet Adelines, Inc., and they will be part of the colorful music show to take place December 4-5 at Our Lady of Mercy High School at Middlebelt and Eleven Mile roads. The Wayne Wonderland chorus of SPEBSQSA, national men's barbershop singing organization, will also be featured in the program.

WW II songs featured in coming music show

Music from the hearts of a nation at war has such deep feeling woven through it that the songs live on long after the conflict is done.

Two award-winning singing groups from western Wayne county have combined voices and imagination to create a three-hour musical show based on the songs and situations of World War II. Songs remembered and sung today.

The musical evening is called "Boogie-Woogie Barbershop" after one of the show's major songs. "Boogie-Woogie Bugle Boy." The show will be performed by the Wayne Wonderland chorus of SPEBSQSA, national men's barbershop singing organization, and

We-Way-Co chapter, Sweet Adelines, Inc., an international group devoted to the enjoyment of four-part harmony for women, barbershop style.

"Boogie-Woogie Barbershop" is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, December 4 and 5, at 8 p.m. in Our Lady of Mercy High School auditorium, 11 Mile and Middlebelt, Farmington Hills.

"The music is alive and has meaning for today," says Claudia Swisher of Plymouth, show co-chairperson with husband Jim. "It's hard to get through a rehearsal with dry eyes. And combining men's and women's barbershop choruses in one show is quite unusual. We are looking forward to two spectacular evenings of excellent family entertainment."

Luanne Schonfeld named NCE director in Evanston, Ill.

A former Belleville resident, Luanne Schonfeld, has been named Director of National College of Education's Career Assessment and Planning Center and Assistant Director of Financial Aid.

The Career Assessment and Planning Center, located in Evanston, Ill., provides testing services and gives students direction in planning their careers.

Mrs. Schonfeld holds a master's degree in counseling psychology from Northwestern University and a bachelor's degree in psychology from Kalamazoo College. A 1971 alumna of Belleville High School, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert G. Smith of Tecumseh. She and her husband, Peter, make their home in Glenview, Ill. with their 2½-year-old son, Matthew.

More than 120 voices are involved, singing such songs as "I Left My Heart at the Stage Door Canteen", "I'll Be Home for Christmas", "White Cliffs of Dover", "When the Lights Go On Again All Over the World", "This is the Army, Mr. Jones", "Chattanooga Choo Choo", "Gold Bless America", "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You" and more.

Besides the two award-winning choruses, the show will feature several top quartets. The "Aire Males," 1961 Pioneer District champions, are coming out of retirement especially for "Boogie-Woogie Barbershop." Jim Swisher's quartet, "Crosstown Express", will sing, as will "Touch of Magic," 1981 women's first-place quartet from Michigan and Ontario. Also featured is Claudia Swisher's quartet, "Yes, Indeed!", third place women's foursome for 1981.

Several other quartets of chorus members will sing specialty numbers in the show, including an unusual combination for barbershoppers — a trio —

Leaving by plane on Wednesday for Cincinnati, Ohio, Mrs. Henry Sager was the guest of the James Jacobs family for the holiday weekend. She returned home Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Huntsinger and family of Taylor were Thanksgiving Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Lupher of Karr Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stevens and daughter, Suzann motored to Dimondale Thursday where they joined members of the Shoup family at the home of Mrs. Stevens' niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Gorsuch, for holiday dinner.

Mr. and Richard Emerson and son, Michael, of Lansing enjoyed a pre-holiday dinner with the former's parents, Mayor and Mrs. Justin Emerson, on Sunday, Nov. 22.

Mrs. B.P. Hopson and houseguest, her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Hearn from Eugene, Ore., spent a couple of days this past week in Grand Rapids where they toured the Ford Museum. They also Paula Dolph of Chicago arrived home for the holiday weekend with her parents, the Albert Dolphs of Edgar Street. Dinner guests there on Thursday were relatives, Mrs. Dolph's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Butler of Milan; Cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goodwin of Pickford; and the Jerry Dolph family of West Huron River Drive.

John Pierman and his mother, Mrs. Lewis Pierman of Ottawa, Ohio, were weekend guests of Mrs. S.C. Pierman of East Huron River Drive. On Thanksgiving Day they joined other members of the family for dinner at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. Jon McClory in Northville.

Holiday dinner at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Kellas of Margery Street found members of her family present: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Satterlee, Bryant and Rachel of Westland; James Kellas and friend from Taylor, and Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Kidwell, Jason and Erin of Ellen Drive.

On Nov. 21, eight members of Belleville Assembly No. 49, Rainbow for girls, mother advisor, Frances Cothorn, and several adults attended the Orange Ray

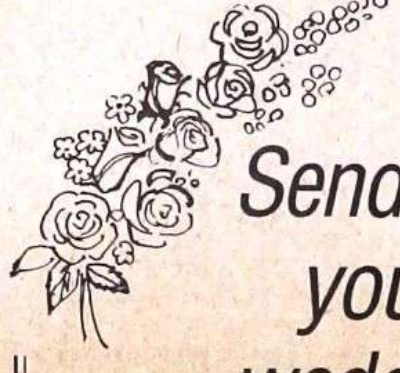

Mrs. Elda Bohl entertained 15 members of her family for their holiday meal. The only out-of-town guests were the Kenneth Griffin family from Farmington Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Schultz of Hoeft Road recently entertained members of the family, Grandma Frances Korgal of Sumpter Road and Mary Korgal, Laurie and Marcy of Hull Road, in celebration of their son, Sammy's 12th birthday. On Sunday, Nov. 22, the same relatives gathered at the home of Peter and Mary Korgal on Hull Road to celebrate the 14th birthday of their daughter, Laurie.

Stephen, son of the Peter Korgal's, is proudly announcing that he shot a deer on his first hunting trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Remus and family and Mrs. Ruth Roulo joined other members of the family for holiday dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Krakowiak of Sherwood Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Maki and small daughter, Shaylan, of Elkton, and Mrs. Linda Taylor and family were holiday guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Maki of Quirk Road.

Send us your wedding story

Want to share that "special day" with those who are unable to be present in person for your wedding ceremony? We'll write the details of your wedding in story form for you — and at no charge — if you'll simply follow a few guidelines.

The Belleville Enterprise and The Romulus Roman offer bridal questionnaires for you to fill out as well as engagement forms for announcing the "start of it all." These forms include all the pertinent questions involved with your marriage or betrothal.

Forms may be picked up at our office, 116 Fourth St., Belleville (we're in the old Township Hall, side entrance) anytime during the week between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

We will also mail forms if a telephone request is made. Call Lee Smith, Suburban Living Editor, at 697-9191.

Brush up on greeting card etiquette

Just in passing

My little lites will 'shine' if I can find them!

With colorful greetings of the coming holiday season already in stores for the benefit of shoppers, it's not too early for a refresher in greeting card etiquette and usage:

You find just the Christmas card you were looking for. Both scene and sentiment are to your liking. It's a personalized greeting, one on which your signature is imprinted. But you're in a quandary. What is the proper form these days?

Which comes first, the man's name or the woman's name; what honorifics do you employ; and where do you put them?

Almost anything goes, and the rationale is pretty much common sense; nevertheless, a few pointers are in order. The National Association of Greeting Card Publishers advises the following.

Marries or single, regardless of status, the tendency is toward informality. The imprinting of one's name and address is a social chachet that leaves no doubt about the signature. But a personal note or signature adds warmth to your Christmas message.

When professional titles or honorifics are used, the man's name usually appears first, but not necessarily. And the titles, depending on preference may come before or after the name: Dr. Dorothy Michaels or Dorothy Michaels, M.D.; a doctorate may be listed as Dr. Dorothy Michaels or Dorothy Michaels, Ph.D.; and a lawyer may be listed as Dorothy Michaels, Esq.

Whether sending a card to a Protestant clergyman or Roman Catholic priest, the proper address is the same: The Reverend David Alderman.

If he has a degree of D.D. or L.L.D., he is The Reverend Dr. David Alderman. If he's married, it's The Rev. and Mrs. David Alderman.

If both parties have titles, or the wife holds a title and the husband does not, the senior title should appear first: Colonel Michele Julin and Major Bertram Julin; Doctor Michele Julin and Bertram Julin. Without titles, either name may come first: Michele and Bertram Julin or Bertram and Michele Julin.

If she has opted to keep her maiden name, the listing may read Michele Juarez and Bertram Julin.

When children's names are added, the father's name, as a rule, appears first: The Julins—Bertram, Michele, Susie, Josie and Wayne; or Bertram, Michele and the Children; The Bertram Julin Family; or Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Julin and Family.

Singles, more often than not, drop titles. Tina Smith or Luis Zea. However, the single woman may employ a Ms, Miss or Mrs. if she is widowed or divorced. Occasionally, divorced women will employ their former husband's name, Mrs. Luis Zea. Or they may prefer a combination, using their maiden name and married name, Mrs. Smith Zea; or Tina Smith Zea or Tina Zea.

Some people tend to add an apostrophe "s" to last names to make them plural. For instance, The Morgans's. But such use is incorrect. Simply add an "s" to all last names except those ending in "s". Names ending in "s", should add "es". The name Cordes, for instance, becomes The Cordeses.

Military titles are always spelled out: Captain, Lieutenant. Offices of the Army, Marines and Air Force use titles with grade of Captain and above. Officers of the Navy use titles with the grade of Lieutenant Commander or above. In all services, officers of junior rank use "Mr." with the grade and organization on a second line: Mr. James Duggan, Second Lieutenant, U.S. Marine Corps.

If you're addressing a card to a child with the same name as his father, address it to Master William Kessler. By so doing, you'll assure that William gets to open William's mail—a big treat for a small child.

The appropriateness of the imprinted, or "personalized greeting card," is unquestionable. But don't hesitate to pen a note above or below your imprinted signature. The decision is yours on how you'd like best to say "Merry Christmas."

Short subjects

BEEFED-UP RICE

There's a lot to be said for the versatility of rice. One of the best things is that it can be prepared in main dishes quickly and easily. Satisfy your hungry family's appetite with Beef, Rice and Beans Ole.

Brown ½ pound ground beef and ½ cup chopped onion in 2 tablespoons oil or shortening. Add 1 can (16 oz.) red kidney beans, ½ cup bottled all-purpose barbecue sauce and ½ teaspoon salt. Cover and simmer 30 minutes. Add 1¼ cups water and 1 cup Minute rice. Bring to a boil; reduce heat, cover and simmer 8 or until rice is tender.

This recipe can be doubled if you need to feed more than the four it serves.

ROMULUS PUBLIC LIBRARY

11121 Wayne Road FICTION

"The Revolt of the eaglets" by Jean Plaidy. In this, the second book of her Plantagenet saga, the author continues the story of the men and women who dominated 12th century Europe.

"They Stay for Death" by Sara Woods. In the Restawhile Hotel, a private nursing home outside Chedcombe, three old people have recently died. True, they had all been quite old and the doctor who attended the home signed the death certificates without hesitation. Nevertheless, gossip is rife in Chedcombe since all three of the deceased were very rich.

"Aransas" by Stephen Harrigan. A subtly told and deeply felt story about our attempts to capture those things we hope can make life meaningful — even while fate waits to flip-flop our plans, baiting and pushing us forward.

BEAUTY, HEALTH

"The Aida Grey Beauty Book" by Aida Grey. A total skin care program custom tailored for the individual — whatever your age, life-style, skin type and condition.

"The Pleasure Addicts" by Lawrence Hatterer. Addiction has come into common usage to describe any unhealthy excess that destroys one's physical and mental life. The author presents his clinical insights and therapeutic techniques devoid of scientific jargon through the profiles of four addicts in crisis.

GEOGRAPHY

"Venice" by Janice Anderson. The excellent color photographs in this book capture something of the unique quality of a city which has for so long so strongly appealed to the imagination of the world.

"Colonial Virginia" reveals the beauty and rich heritage of this important American state.

"Holland" is a country which venerates the past, but a country which nevertheless pulses with modern life. It is a land where broad open horizons reveal infinite variety and this book with its fascinating color photographs has captured that variety unforgettably.

ECOLOGY

Here come the wizards of the court

By ERIC GEARNS
ANP SPORTS

With the 1981 football season now history, many of those same high school athletes and some new faces will debut this Friday night on the basketball court, as several area teams kick off their 1981-1982 season.

Leading the area school into battle this winter will be an exceptionally strong Romulus High School team coached by Al Wilkerson for the second straight year.

The Eagles will be especially powerful this year with the return of all five starters from last year, including their outstanding guard Bob Stewart.

Stewart, a 5-10 senior, is a three year starter and was a member of the All-Area team and All State Honorable Mention last season with a 17.2 points per

A touch of class

By ERIC GEARNS
ANP Special Writer

A "touch of class."

You'll find that almost everywhere when it comes to professional and collegiate sports and athletics.

But, in high school? I like to feel that a prep athlete is like an unpolished diamond. Once the rough spots are eliminated by a lot of hard work and practice, the athlete gets that glimmering look. That touch of class.

Oh, excuse me, let me introduce myself. I'm Eric Gearns, sportswriter and sometimes columnist who will be taking up some of the space here and your time from time-to-time.

Let me tell you about some classy people I've met in this area of late.

Class is an extremely scarce commodity in high school athletics, but in our area we are blessed with an overabundance of class individuals.

Among these are Bill Hawley and Floyd Carter of Wayne Memorial; Chuck Gordon of Westland John Glenn; Don Foley of Romulus, Armand Vigna of Franklin, and J. B. Smith.

Hawley as Athletic Director and varsity girls basketball coach at Wayne is a rather strange breed. He is what I like to call 'a smiler.' Bill never seems to lose that ever present smile of his no matter what the score or how the season is going.

Although in the first round of the girls basketball district playoffs, I did see a trace of a frown after a particularly bad evening of officiating, in his game against John Glenn.

Hawley probably puts in more hours than any other employee of Wayne High School, and while his duties deprive him of valuable time with his family, still the smile remains. Bill Hawley certainly has class.

Carter doesn't always smile, but he still possesses a great deal of class. Despite a very disappointing 1-8 season, Carter still showed class by congratulating his players and fighting for their recognition on various all star teams. Also, unlike some coaches, Carter shouldered the responsibility for the teams bad year. Last year, when Wayne went 8-1, Carter gave the credit to the team and his assistants. No doubt about it the guy has class.

Gordon over at Westland John Glenn has class as well. Gordon, like Carter, fights very hard for his players and also gives the credit for his team's 8-1 performance this season to his players and assistants. To some this may seem like phony humility, but there are many cases of coaches hogging the credit for wins, and shifting the blame for losses, so it takes someone special to accept blame and transfer credit. Gordon has class.

Don Foley suffered through a winless 0-9 season.

For most coaches that would mean termination. But Foley possesses such class and is such a determined worker that the powers that be at Romulus will keep him around.

It is sometimes just as important to teach young men how to accept defeat as it is to instruct them in the art of victory. Foley has accepted the full blame this season despite the fact that injuries practically stripped him of any chance of winning. Foley has class.

Vigna has class. He saw his quarterback go down for the season with an injury in the first game. A quarterback who could have been among the best in the state. He saw a possible state championship ride away in the ambulance that first game of the season, and he heard the growl of the fans who blamed him for playing the boy on defense as well as offense.

Still Vigna kept his composure and led his team to a very credible season including a victory over league co-champion North Farmington. Not once did Vigna refer to his backup quarterback as a second stringer. Not once did he say what might have been.

Yes, Vigna has class.

There probably aren't more than a few people in Wayne who even know who J. B. Smith is, but those who do are very proud of that knowledge.

Smith is a coach in the junior basketball program run by Bill Hawley. Smith is an individual who has been active for several years in both basketball and baseball programs, and every one of the kids he has coached have grown up with a great deal of respect for him.

Smith teaches more than the basics of athletic play, but rather how to take the lessons of the playing field and the basketball court with you into the real world. He teaches that sports is simply an outlet for our excess energy, and that most of the players' energies belong rightly in the classroom and later in the office or factory. Those parents who have been lucky enough to have their kids coached by Smith are truly grateful. J. B. Smith has class.

These men are not the only possessors of class in our area, and in the coming weeks we will mention some more. If you have some ideas on some sports people with class we'd love to hear from you just drop us a line here at the office, and we will try and write like they play it, with class.

An Added Thought — It is a sad state of affairs when a ballplayer with Steve Kemp's ability gets so wrapped up in himself that he forgets that he started playing ball for fun, and forces a team to trade him.

It is also a sad state of affairs when one ballplayer can cry to the press and get a winning coach fired, such as the case of Magic Johnson and the Los Angeles Lakers.

VanWagoner takes over at Canton

From freshman coach to varsity coach in three short years.

That's the story of young Dave Van Wagoner, who was named to replace Craig Bell as head varsity coach of the Canton Chiefs cagers.

Young and filled with enthusiasm and exuberance, Van Wagoner looks forward to his first year as head mentor with great anticipation. "I'm very enthusiastic," he said, in describing his outlook toward the new season. "We're young and not very tall, but we have good team quickness and I'm very excited about the future. We have twelve players on the team and everyone's attitude has been just tremendous," said Van Wagoner, who was freshman cage coach at Canton from 1977-79 and led the junior varsity team the past two seasons.

He's happy to have Dave Greenwood and Rob Neu as his assistants and praised them for their contributions to the Canton program. Greenwood coached the freshman team the past two years and will guide the JV squad this year. Neu, of course, is not new, having carved out a fine reputation on the Plymouth Salem basketball team before graduating.

If enthusiasm and hard work builds a winner, young Van Wagoner is well on his way. He hopes the fans and students will support the team and give it the backing needed to build tradition and a winner.

The rookie coach admittedly faces an uphill struggle to build a strong team with the graduation of center Sean play against anyone in the state this year. We were especially strong in the summer leagues and our talent and experience are going to help a great deal this year. We will be strong."

Down the road apiece at Wayne High School Coach Dan Vasiloff will be entering his first year as the Zebra Varsity Coach, after three years as the Jayvee mentor.

"I think I'll have some advantage because I have worked with all these kids before, so it isn't a completely new situation for me," said Vasiloff.

Wayne will enter its first game at home Friday against Ann Arbor Huron with three lettermen leading the way. Seniors Vince Patterson, 6-3, Jim Nibert 6-2, and Steve Coleman 6-4 will provide the nucleus for the team under the boards while Norman Devoe 6-1, and

Cage wars begin

Ready or not — the 1981-82 high school basketball season gets underway for most area teams Friday night. And Romulus, with four of its starters of a year ago back in the fold, is the team to keep your eyes on this season. Coach Al Wilkerson's Eagles launch the 1981 campaign Friday night on the road at Temperance Bedford.

Wayne swimmers retain Great Lakes league title

Taking "extra caution" in order not to be disqualified from the final relay, Wayne Memorial garnered a needed second place in the 400-yard freestyle relay to seal the 1981 Great Lakes 8 Conference swimming and diving championship.

Wayne had the narrowest edge—one point—margin of victory over its arch-rival, Monroe, which came up with the victory in the final relay, but fell one point short of the team championship, 296-295.

"I felt we didn't swim very well in the preliminary events," said Wayne Coach Jim McPartlin, "however, we made up for it in the finals."

Wayne received a superb over-all performance from junior Mary Batterson who single-handedly contributed 32 of her team's points. Miss Batterson earned the league crown for the 200-yard freestyle as she beat Monroe's Amy Thayer to the finish. Batterson's winning time was clocked at 2:07.8.

She became the league's only double gold winner when she turned in a 57.4 for the 100-yard freestyle.

Wayne also picked up a gold from Mary Jo Mason's efforts in the 100-yard breaststroke. Mason's winning time was posted as 1:14.6.

It was Wayne's consecutive conference championship and the Zebras will now travel to Michigan State where the state finals will be held on Dec. 5.

Houle, an All-Area star, and Dave Malek, a hustling guard who never gave less than 100 percent.

Van Wagoner hopes to build this year's team around three players who saw limited playing time last season. The senior Tri-captains are Steve Tuttle, Matt Thomas and Tom Harris. Tuttle, a 6-5, 200-pound center muscles his way around the basket very well and will provide rebounding strength for the Chiefs.

Thomas is a 6-1, 180-pound forward who made some tremendous moves under the basket last year to score, but was inconsistent at times. The cat-quick Harris is a 5-9 guard who started after the 6th game last year and is counted on by Van Wagoner to guide the Canton offense.

Canton is a young team, featuring seven juniors and five seniors on the roster. However, most of them have not seen much varsity action.

Another player battling for a starting job is junior Pat Murphy, a 6-3, 180-pound forward who played in seven games last year. "Pat's improving every day," Van Wagoner said.

Senior 6-2 forward Ron King and senior 6-foot guard Al Blascak are in the search for starting berths. Others who are on the Canton roster include Ron Rienas, 6-2 junior forward, Don Dombey, 5-10 junior guard, 5-9 junior guard Mike Scarpello and junior Tim McFarland, a 5-10 backcourtman.

Van Wagoner hopes for some rebounding strength from Mark Tuttle, (Steve's brother), and Greg Jacobs, a pair of 6-foot-4 junior forwards.

Canton, after two outstanding seasons, dropped to a 10-10 overall record last year and 5-5 in the Western Six League to finish in the middle of the pack. Van Wagoner sees the league pennant up for grabs by three or four teams, including an outside chance of his chiefs being in the thick of the chase.

"Farmington Harrison will have a lot of enthusiasm and spirit after just winning the state football championship," Van Wagoner pointed out, "plus Livonia Churchill and Northville should have good teams. I think we could be right up there at the top if we keep working hard and hustling."

The first-year varsity coach will not have an easy season-opener when the Chiefs travel to play always-tough Ypsilanti on Tuesday, Dec. 8.

Sam Lentine a 5-7 junior will probably handle the backcourt duties.

Also seeing considerable action will be Tony Bass 6-1, Andy Johnson 6-1, and Gary Billings 6-0. While Romulus will try to run this season, Wayne will run what Vasiloff calls his "turtle offense". We will try to control the tempo of our games and not let the other team run the ball up and down the court on us," said the new Wayne Coach.

Wayne will open its league season a week from Friday against Taylor Center, and Vasiloff feels that Wyandotte and Monroe will be the teams to beat this year.

A little further north, Dan Henry is preparing to enter his third year as head coach at Westland John Glenn. The Rockets, who open their season at home Friday against Taylor Center, will feature a brother combination in 6-2 senior forward Bob Hawley, and his younger brother 5-10 sophomore guard Jeff Hawley. The duo are the sons of Wayne High Athletic Director Bill Hawley. Also playing a key role for the Rockets will be 6-4 senior Jack Walker, 5-6 senior Bo Whitner, 6-2 sophomore Todd Stein, and 5-11 junior Todd Jennings.

Out west in Belleville Tom Niemi is entering his ninth year as the Tiger coach. While Belleville lost five players from last year's squad, they have an excellent nucleus with five returning lettermen including last year's leading scorer, Reg Grantham 6-0 senior 14.3 points pergame, and Sam Villa, the third leading scorer last season, a 6-3 senior who scored 138 points last year.

Also returning are the teams leading free throw shooter Chris Flumwith, with a 73 percent proficiency, 6-1 senior Kevin Saunderson, and 5-11 senior Keith Mixon. 6-3 Mike Mellan is expected to see considerable action as a sixth man.

Niemi believes speed will be the key this year. "Our league is very big. Salem, Bentley, and Trenton are all huge, so to counteract our lack of size we will have to run. I think we can do that with Reg. Grantham. He is probably one of the top guards in the state and is very quick," said Niemi.

Coach Dan Henry lost the first six players from last year's District basketball champions at Westland John Glenn and faces the task of building from scratch for the coming cage season.

"There's no doubt that we've a very young team but we have a lot of potential and could surprise a lot of people — especially in the second half of the season," Henry said.

Henry, now entering his third year as varsity coach of the Rockets, lost a courtload of talent when his front line of Dave Ward, Rob Sisson and Kevin Thweatt and backcourtmen Tony Dalimonte, Tom Smith and Steve Hodges all graduated. That group compiled a scintillating 17-4 overall record last year, including a thrilling 48-46 victory over arch-rival Wayne Memorial to claim the District Title in the state basketball playoffs.

The Rockets, however, lost to Ypsilanti in the regionals after holding the powerful Braves to a slim 37-33 halftime lead.

Not only will Coach Henry have an all-new starting line-up Friday night, he's not even positive which team he will play. Right now, he's scheduled to host Taylor Center but if the Dec. 3 millage election fails in the City of Taylor, John Glenn could wind up facing Dearborn Heights Ann Arbor.

"Everything's kind of up in the air right now until the outcome of the Dec. 3 millage vote," Henry said. "However, if the millage is defeated, we still may play Taylor Center, although Taylor schools are scheduled to close Dec. 10 if the money is not approved by the voters."

Bob Hawley, who saw limited playing time last year, and Rick Wilson, the All-Metro Quarterback of the Rockets' football team, are a pair of 6-2 senior forwards who will form the nucleus of this year's Glenn quintet. Jack Walker, a 6-2, 185-pound All-Area football lineman, will play either forward or center while Bo Whitner, a 5-7 senior, and Greg Gill, a 5-7 junior, will be the starting playmakers in the backcourt.

"We have a very small group of guards and we'll have to rely on our quickness a lot," said Henry, who plans to use a "motion offense." "It definitely will be a rebuilding year, but the players show a lot of promise and if they come along quickly I believe we could surprise a lot of people."

Henry mentioned a pair of sophomores that led Stevenson Junior High to an 11-1 record last year. Todd Stein, a 6-2 forward, and Jeff Hawley, 5-9 younger brother of Bob, have fine potential, according to Henry, and could provide punch as they mature in varsity competition.

As for the Northwest Suburban League race, Henry sees a real dog-fight between North Farmington, Thurston, Garden City East and Livonia Franklin, who all have two starters returning. "John Glenn and Redford Union both were heavily hit by graduation," said the diminutive Henry, whose Rockets finished 6-4 in league action last year.

The Rockets are scheduled to travel to Taylor Kennedy and G. C. East before returning home on Dec. 18 to host Thurston.

Brock's bursts Jake's bubble

For high-flying Jake's Lounge, it took eight weeks before they were shot down in defeat.

And it took a determined and hard-skating Brock Builders to do it, 3-1.

Jake's struck first, getting on the scoreboard on a goal by Al Farina with Jim Lear and Eugene Hudson assisting. Jim Gibson held off Jake's attackers from that point on while John Colligan tallied twice for Brock Builders with Dennis LaPensee accounting for the third goal. Don Middaugh and Art Cazabon finished with two assists while Mike Afamson and Layne Cardinal received one assist.

Tastee Freeze remained tied for first place as Bob Eggers led the Freezers to a 6-0 victory over All Sorts Sports. Eggers scored four goals and received one assist while Ed Spontack and Bob Wood rounded off the scoring with a goal apiece.

Dave Frankling picked up four assists; Dan Thomas received three assists; Dennis Broge picked up two assists while Guy Moise and Dave Cherry finished with one assist. The Freezers netminder Tim Vanderburgh carded his first shut-out of the season as All Sorts Sports applied heavy pressure in the closing minutes in an effort to run the shut-out.

Little Bills Trophies took advantage of Jake's loss by skating past Family Heating 4-2 to move into a tie for first place. Gene Tauriainen and Jay Middaugh scored one goal and picked up one assist. Eddie Harmon and Joe Soukup had single tallies while Ron Swider, Rick Rattai and Jerry Bular received one assist.

Joel Layne and Jack Bockstanz scored once for Family Heating and picked up one assist. Ray Erickson and Pat Brown also each had one assist.

In the shoot-out of the evening, Etronic outskated Johnson Carbonic by carding a 12-4 decision. Jerry Robertson scored a hat trick and picked up two assists; Al Pulk, Tom DiLaura and Jim Thomas tallied twice along with two assists; Nick Palise netted the puck once and received three assists and Roger Wogenske scored one goal and assisted another. Jim Drewry and Terry Boote finished with one assist.

Johnson Carbonic got on the scoreboard as Gary Naumoff tallied twice and assisted one goal, Ron Hays netted the puck once and assisted another goal with Ron Johnson scoring Johnson's final goal. Terry Jobbitt received two assists while Arnie McClellan and Dale Fawkes had one assist.

Dave Zajac once again led Benny's Pizzeria to victory, this time over Futurama Engineering, 9-6. Zajac scored five goals and assisted two other goals; Rod Dittmar tallied twice also picking up one assist; Claud Johnston and Dave Fishwick netted the puck once and received one assist.

Chuck Heebsh finished the game with two assists as Tony Ianni, Moe Paquette and Dave Weaver picked up one assist.

Ron Tyranski and Dave Milam led Futurama's scoring with two goals apiece. Dave Roberts and Chuck Jennett accounted for the remaining two goals. Dave Zielinski finished with three assists; John McFaddin and Tom Bryans received two assists while Conrad Madaleno, Rich Riedel, Dan Demers and Ken Knick picked up one assist.

Looking ahead to Sunday, Dec. 6, All Sorts Sports and Jake's Lounge meet at 7:30 p.m.; Little Bills Trophies will host Etronic at 9 p.m.; while Benny's Pizzeria will skate against Family Heating in the night cap at 10:30 p.m. All three games will be played at the Westland Rink.

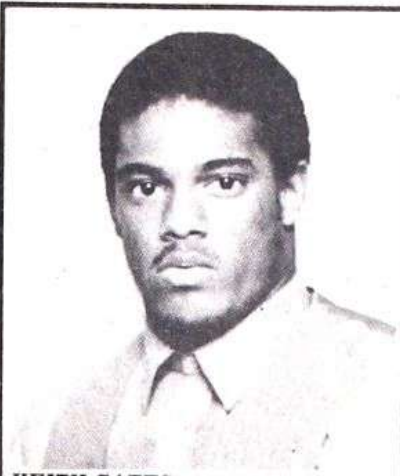

Over in Wayne, Futurama Engineering will play Johnson Carbonic at 8:30 p.m., with Tastee Freeze and Brock Builders to follow at 10 p.m.

Gates earns All-State grid honors

Keith Gates, the versatile running back from Belleville High Tigers repeated last year's performance by Wayne Memorial's Ricky Rogers and made First Team on all three All-State football teams.

Gates, who gained 1,342 yards this season, was voted to the first team on the Detroit News, Detroit Free Press, and Associated Press All State teams.

The 6-1, 190 pound senior is being heavily recruited by several major colleges and will be rated very high in this year's high school blue chipper list.

It is highly possible that the fleet-footed Gates may join Rogers at the University of Michigan next fall.

Class B All-Area grid team is all lined-up

Because of the Thanksgiving holidays — and with several of the candidates departing on hunting trips to the northern provinces — the Associated Newspapers' Class B All-Area high school football team was not ready for publication in today's edition.

Look for the coveted prep team next week.

Also, a typographical error left one of the names off the Class A Honorable Mention list last week.

Included in the list of honorees was that of Jim Spada, Wayne Memorial's outstanding defensive linebacker. We apologize for any inconvenience the omission may have caused.

What's That Sound?

By STEVE O'LEARY

Hendrix comparisons are valid

JAMES BLOOD ULMER
"Free Lancing"
(CBS)

The comparisons, as you may have heard, are with the late Jimi Hendrix—and they are valid.

For while James Blood Ulmer's style has nothing whatsoever in common with Hendrix's, he is the best originalist since Jimi, breaking down all of the so-called "rules" of harmony and melody that make old bores like "Fred" Nugent (as Cheap Trick's Rick Neilson once referred to him) what they are and forever shall be.

In fact, if there's anyone whose style is even vaguely close to Ulmer's, it's the great Ornette Coleman, which makes perfect sense, since it was during a stint with Coleman's group that James Blood developed his "harmolodic" theory, which he applied to the guitar.

And no, I didn't make up the term "harmolodic" (which is a contraction of harmony, melodic, and movement), but the term is best described by Coleman: "Harmony describes a certain position in an ongoing melody. Movement is how you get to that position. And melody, at it's simplest, is just a single interval, a movement from one note to the next. That single interval can suggest or BE the harmony, it's part of the melodic line, and it shows you the direction of the movement."

In other words, harmolodic music is based on melody rather than on regular harmonic cycles or chord progressions. In still other words, he won't be playing something you'll mistake for "Louie Louie" or "Johnny B. Goode."

If you're an adventurous soul, chances are you'll like what you find on "Free Lancing," which may explain why this brilliant new jazzman has had two LP's and a few 45's released on Rough Trade, an independent record label known as a "new wave" label.

If, on the other hand, your idea of jazz is George Benson's "Breezin'", you too ought to buy this album. The heart attack will be well deserved. Remember, an open mind is a happy one, and a closed mind is Detroit radio. So try it... you'll like it.

Traci Nemeth (above), the daughter of Paul and Nancy Nemeth of Belleville, will perform for the first time with the Ypsilanti Area Dancers as the group presents "The Nutcracker Ballet" at 3 and 7:30 p.m. Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday at the Ypsilanti High School Auditorium, 2095 Packard.

Area theatrical offerings

The stage version of the motion picture and television production, "Heaven Can Wait," will be presented by the Players Guild of Dearborn on Friday thru Sunday and also Dec. 11 thru 13 at the Guild playhouse, located at 21730 Madison. All performances will start at 8 p.m.

Among the local performers in the cast are Tobin Hissong of Canton, Kimberly Kope of Wayne and Bob Walker of Westland.

Tickets, priced at $5, may be reserved by calling 565-5392.

Monica Chavez of Westland has a leading role in Henry Ford Community College's production of "Summer and Smoke," to be presented Dec. 4 thru 6 and Dec. 11 thru 13 at 8:30 p.m. in the Adray Auditorium of the MacKenzie Fine Arts Center.

This Tennessee Williams' classic is set before the start of the first world war and centers around the life of Alma Winemiller, a young Southern woman in search of love and an identity. During the course of the two-part drama, Alma falls in love with a doctor named John Buchanan, who is unable to return her feelings.

Chavez is cast as Rosa Gonzales, a young Mexican woman who works in her father's roadhouse and attracts the attentions of the young doctor.

Tickets, priced at $3 for students and senior citizens, can be purchased at the door or in advance at the student convenience center.

MOVIES

This chase film simply runs out of gas

"The Pursuit of D. B. Cooper," from Universal Pictures. Directed by Roger Spottiswoode. Screenplay by Jeffrey Alan Fiskin. Starring Treat Williams, Robert Duvall, Kathryn Harrold. Rated PG.

By J. T. YURKO
Special to Playtime

The perfect crime. Ask anyone from Sherlock Holmes to Sam Spade and they'll tell you there's no such thing.

But ask any of the hundreds of police and FBI men who are still hunting for D. B. Cooper, and they'll tell you his crime is about as perfect as you can imagine. The only one who can tell us if the crime was indeed faultless is D. B. Cooper, and he's not talking—that is, if he's alive.

In case you don't remember who D. B. Cooper is, he's the only one to get away with a successful hijacking of a plane. He bailed out over the Rockies with nearly a quarter of a million dollars in cash, and hasn't been seen or heard of since.

Conjecture about what he's doing these days is the basis for "The Pursuit of D. B. Cooper." Essentially the film focuses on the first few days following his daring crime, with Treat Williams starring as the clever Mr. Cooper, and Robert Duvall as a special insurance investigator hot on his trail.

The story of D. B. Cooper has a lot of possibilities. He could have been presented as anyone from a folk hero to a diabolic mafia veteran. The filmmakers have chosen to ignore any social comments and have turned out what is ultimately just a chase film, a sort of half-true "Duvall and the Bandit" romp across the country.

All manner of transportation is used and abused, including cars, horses, planes, and there's a very well-photographed sequence on white-water rapids.

Robert Duvall again plays a military/police character as he has done in such recent films as "Apocalypse Now," "The Great Santini," and "True Confessions." Treat Williams comes off his recent heavy-duty role in "Prince of the City."

It must have been fun for them to play in a simple crash 'em up movie and they look like they're having a good time.

The audience also has a good time, but as the filmmakers have done little else with the fertile story of D. B. Cooper than to make a chase film, by the end of the chase, the film simply runs out of gas.

New Merit Research Released:

“Extra Taste.”

Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers report taste bonus at low tar.

The most rigorous MERIT research to date has just been completed.

Result: MERIT smokers confirm taste a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar cigarettes.

MERIT Takes Taste Honors.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers are glad they switched from higher tar cigarettes. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT Beats Toughest Competitors.

In the second part of this study, new tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

TAX-FREE

all Savers Certificate

If you elect to receive interest at maturity there is no compounding and the interest rate on your All Savers Certificate will be 8.34%. If you wish to have interest payable monthly or quarterly, the annual simple interest rate on your All Savers Certificate will be 8.010% and interest retained in your All Savers Certificate will be continuously compounded for an effective annual yield of 8.34%. These rates are available for All Savers Certificates opened through December 24, 1981. Rates for accounts opened after December 24, 1981, will be announced later. However, the rate established at the time an All Savers Certificate is opened is the rate in effect for the full one-year term of the account. You should also know that in the event of early withdrawal from an All Savers Certificate federal law and regulations require a substantial early withdrawal penalty and loss of the interest exclusion for federal income tax purposes. The All Savers rate of 8.34% is equivalent to the yields for taxable investments shown in the table. This table demonstrates how the All Savers Certificates can provide you with a higher after-tax yield than you may be earning from a money market mutual fund or on other investments. The deposit needed in your All Savers Certificate to achieve the maximum allowable deduction is $23,980.82 for a joint return and $11,990.41 for an individual return.

Compare the Tax-Free All Savers Rate of 8.34% with Yields on Taxable Investments.

TAXABLE INCOME ON A JOINT RETURN	COMPARABLE YIELD ON TAXABLE INVESTMENTS	TAXABLE INCOME ON A JOINT RETURN	COMPARABLE YIELD ON TAXABLE INVESTMENTS
$10,000.00	10.17%	$ 70,000.00	18.13%
20,000.00	10.97%	80,000.00	18.13%
30,000.00	13.24%	90,000.00	20.34%
40,000.00	14.63%	100,000.00	20.34%
50,000.00	16.35%	110,000.00	23.17%
60,000.00	16.35%	120,000.00	23.17%

The yields shown in this table are based on 1981 tax rates but do not reflect the effects of any tax credits that may be available in 1981, nor do they take into account the 50% maximum tax rate on salary and wages. If tax-free interest is received in 1982, the comparable yield on taxable investments should be calculated using 1982 tax rates. In addition, the yield for the All Savers Certificate actually will be somewhat higher because the amount excluded from federal income tax is also not taxed by the State of Michigan.

Here's what the one-year All Savers Certificate can mean to you.

- You can exclude up to $2,000.00 interest from federal income tax on a joint return ($1,000.00 on an individual return). The amount excluded is also not taxed by the State of Michigan.
- Your All Savers Certificate is insured to $100,000.00 by the FSLIC.
- Your interest rate is guaranteed for the full term of the certificate, unlike other investments such as money market funds where rates fluctuate daily.
- You can participate with a deposit of $500.00 or more.
- Funds in your Standard Federal 26-Week Money Market Certificate can be transferred to an All Savers Certificate without any early withdrawal penalty on the transferred funds.

Seaman Nelson participates in 'Kernal Usher'

Navy Boatswain's Mate Seaman Devlin A. Nelson, son of Napoleon and Betty J. Nelson of 6201 Irma Street, Romulus, recently participated in exercise "Kernal Usher 81-3."

He is a crewmember aboard the amphibious transport dock USS Duluth, homeported in San Diego.

During the exercise, his ship was part of the 17th Marine Amphibious Unit (MAU). More than 5,000 Marine and Navy personnel, 13 ships, 30 aircraft and 40 helicopters participated in the exercise off the coast of southern California at Camp Pendleton.

Designed to fully test the capabilities of the 17th MAU, the exercise included embarkation aboard Navy ships, amphibious assaults, ground operations and overall coordination essential to a successful Navy and Marine Corps amphibious operation.

The Duluth is 570 feet long and carries a crew of 473. Additionally, it can accommodate a Marine battalion landing team of approximately 930 men.

A 1978 graduate of Romulus High School, Nelson joined the Navy in December 1978.

Army Pvt. Cedric L. Mingas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ezell Richardson of 13485 Rawsonville Road, Belleville, has completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky.

During the training, students receive instructions in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

Army Pvt. Deborah L. Totzkay, daughter of William D. Totzkay of New Boston, and Patricia A. Druffel of 2025 Gray Court, North Fort Myers, Florida, has completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C.

During the training, students receive instructions in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

Totzkay is a 1975 graduate of Trenton High School.

Airman Robert M. Edwards, son of Lois M. Jones of 11543 Dewitt, Belleville, has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the aircraft maintenance field.

Edwards is a 1981 graduate of Belleville High School.

David L. Thompson, son of Lester G. Thompson of 6757 Belleville Road, Belleville, has been promoted in the U.S. Army to the rank of sergeant.

Thompson is a section chief at Fort Sill, Okla., with the 2nd Battalion, 18th Field Artillery.

He is a 1979 graduate of Highland High School, Ault, Colo.

Toni M. Wanshon, 17, has entered the Air Force's Delayed Enlistment Program (DEP), according to her recruiter, Technical Sergeant Roy Smith, 3645 Metro Place Mall, Wayne.

Miss Wanshon's entry into the DEP serves two purposes, Smith said. First, it allows the Air Force to schedule an opening for her to attend basic military training and be assigned to a job or skill area.

Second, the DEP enables Miss Wanshon to complete her high school education and wrap up personal affairs before commencing four years active duty.

Mark K. Inch, 19, son of Barbara Inch, 28455 Forestdale, Romulus, has entered the U. S. Air Force's Delayed Enlistment Program (DEP).

According to Technical Sergeant Roy Smith, the Air Force recruiter here, Inch will commence four years active duty on March 12, undergoing six weeks basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex.

"The Air Force has guaranteed that Inch, a 1980 graduate of Romulus Senior High School, will then receive Ground Radio Communications Equipment Specialist training, and upon completion be assigned to an Air Force duty station."

SUMPTER TOWNSHIP BOARD MINUTES

Special Board Meeting
November 20, 1981

Supervisor Reeves called the meeting to order at 6:06 P.M. with the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Roll Call Showing:

Present: Supervisor Reeves, Clerk Banotai, Treasurer Duey and Trustees: Reaume, Morgan, Huziak and Bevins.

Absent: None

Also present: Engineer Wilhelm, Gerald Luedtke of Gerald Luedtke and Associates, Peter A. Kirchner and Ezra Wyche of the Planning Commission and Deputy Clerk Sienko.

Motion by Reaume, supported by Morgan to accept agenda. Motion carried unanimously.

Agenda

1. Pledge
2. Roll Call
3. Approval of Agenda
4. Discussion with Luedtke and Associates
5. Adjournment
4. Discussion with Luedtke and Associates. Mr. Luedtke presented a prepared retainer schedule to the Board Members explaining what the Board could expect of his Company if they decided to hire him as Township Planner.

Mr. Luedtke also went on to explain to the Board the difference in the State of Michigan Small Communities Block Grant Program and the Wayne County Block Grant Program that the Township is currently participating in. The Township can belong to one, but they cannot participate in both. Mr. Luedtke was of the opinion that at the present time the Township would probably be better off staying with the Wayne County Block Grant Program.

Mr. Luedtke ended his presentation at 6:39 P.M.

5. Adjournment

Motion by Duey, supported by Banotai to adjourn. Meeting adjourned at 6:40 P.M.

Respectfully submitted,
Louis P. Banotai, Clerk

RNs Considering a Comeback in your Nursing Career?

Be a part of the Nurse Re-Entry Program offered by U of M Hospital beginning February 4. If you're looking for an opportunity to review and update your knowledge of nursing science and revitalize your nursing skills, this program is for you.

Mark the date December 10, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on your calendar and reserve a space at our Re-Entry to Practice Luncheon. Our program coordinators and former re-entry nurses will be there to tell you about the program and its potential benefits for you.

To RSVP for the luncheon or to find out more information regarding the Re-Entry to Practice Program, call (313) 763-3010.

DON'T WAIT

We live in a fast moving world. Each day you wait to make a decision about your future is a day you'll never regain. Here's an opportunity to add direction to your future. To gain experience and a good paying position... with the Air Force.

Talk to an Air Force recruiter. Ask about the advantages of Air Force life. About the 30 days of vacation with pay each year. About educational programs and the Community College of the Air Force.

Find out about Air Force technical schools which will train and prepare you for an Air Force skill. Learn how Air Force experience and training can prepare you for your future.

Ask about our PROMIS computer and how it can tell you about the career areas YOU can qualify for.

Put Air Force training and experience into your future. Find out more. For your country. For yourself.

Pets make lovable, affordable presents

If you've searched the department stores for the perfect present and come up empty, take heart. Just around the corner is a shop full of love, companionship and fun at prices that won't boggle your budget.

Why not get a pet for that hard-to-please person on your list?

According to the Pet Information Bureau, there's a pet for nearly every pocketbook:

• Dogs and Cats — A Christmas kitten or puppy can be found for as little as $8, though usually a purebred or neutered female will cost more.

After selecting the pet, visit a local pet shop to obtain such items as a collar, leash, brush, flea collar, food bowl, chew toy, and vitamins for a dog; litter, litterbox, and flea collar for a cat.

The extra items will run around $25, and the cat's will cost approximately $10. You'll also need a license for the dog, (about $8) and an ID tag for an outdoor cat ($3).

• Freshwater Fish — For the beginning aquarist, freshwater fish are the best choice. They are easier to maintain than saltwater species, and start at a much lower price range.

Goldfish can be had for as little as 25 cents apiece, and it's suggested that the beginner start with a 10-gallon tank, which costs around $25 for a complete setup.

Tropical fish are a bit more expensive, averaging 40 cents to 80 cents apiece. Complete setup for tropical fish should include the tank (you can start with a 10-gallon), along with a pump, filter, gravel and heater, which will all usually come in one package starting at about $30.

• Birds — Finches are the least expensive, followed by parakeets. These pets can be found for less than $10.

A cage will cost anywhere from $20 up, depending on how fancy a cage you'd like. Seed and water containers and toy may be an additional $4.

• Reptiles — A little green garter snake, at $4, is the least expensive of the reptiles. Lizards cost around $10. Both will live happily ever after in a small aquarium tank that costs from $5 to $20 depending on the size.

Necessary furnishings for a suitable reptilian habitat include gravel, tree branches, a water dish and a rock. These extras should total no more than $10.

• Small animals — A lively gerbil or hamster makes an excellent pet for children. A gerbil can be purchased for about $4, and a hamster for $5.

Necessary equipment includes an aquarium tank or cage ($5 to $15); cedar shavings; gravity-flow water bottle and food dish; and exercise wheel.

Guinea pigs are also ideal pets for children — they're friendly, quiet and gentle — and they can be purchased for $10 to $14. Since guinea pigs are larger than the other rodents, they'll need a larger cage, which will cost about $15.

Choosing a living gift can be a most personal way to say "Merry Christmas — I love you!" And, with the wide selection available, it's easy to find a pet that's cute, cuddly and affordable.

A puppy will provide love, companionship and fun for someone special this Christmas at prices that won't boggle your budget.

Automotive gifts help reduce costs

Many motorists today are routinely performing preventive maintenance on their cars. They save money, enjoy the satisfaction of a job well done and, most importantly, extend the lives of their vehicles.

Economy-minded drivers will especially appreciate Christmas gifts that are designed to reduce maintenance costs and boost the performance of their cars.

For example, Black & Decker offers a 15-item Car Care product line-up that includes the CarLite, the Car-Vac, the Inflator and the Spark Plug Cleaner. All four are 12-volt products that plug into most cigarette lighters to provide quick, convenient, reliable service.

Keeping the family car clean is a time-consuming task, but the powerful yet compact CarVac quickly removes dust, dirt, lint and cigarette ashes from automobile upholstery, rugs and mats.

Weighing less than two pounds, the Car Vac features an aerodynamically designed nozzle and high performance DC motor. The unit houses a permanent reusable filter bag and is fitted with a 16-foot cord to easily reach into trunk areas.

It's constructed with cord and plug storage space to prevent tangling or damage when not in use. Accessories include an upholstery brush and a crevice tool for cleaning hard-to-reach places.

Properly inflated tires increase gas mileage and reduce tread wear. A 12-volt Inflator is a convenient air source for keeping automotive and motorcycle tires at the recommended pressure.

Rated at 160 P.S.I., the Inflator can restore full pressure to an empty tire instantly. Equally handy for air shock absorbers, footballs and other recreational items, the Inflator has a built-in pressure gauge and a 27-inch hose with a universal valve adaptor.

For drivers who want peak performance and long life from an engine, the Spark Plug Cleaner is right on target as a Christmas gift.

Also operated from a 12-volt cigarette lighter, this product improves plug performance for automobile and marine engines, chain saws, lawn mowers and other engines. Working on the same principle as professional units, it removes chemical deposits and residue from plugs in just 30 seconds.

Since it increases the life of spark plugs, the Spark Plug Cleaner is also a moneysaver.

Car Care products make unique yet sensible holiday gifts that will be appreciated by the car-owner for a long time after Christmas.

Around the world

Setting up decorations for the holidays is a tradition in many homes from one-room apartments to 30-room ranches. So it is at the YWCA of the U.S.A. where, over the past 12 decades, a collection of figures and objects from all over the world has been assembled. The stable and figures were hand carved from bamboo in the Philippines, and the large madonna is Mexican ceramic. The wood block shepherd was carved in Oregon, and the cloaked Arab was designed by a young Jordanian girl. The typical "American" Christmas traditions are in fact a worldwide blend of customs from many countries and many religions. This International YWCA creche is symbolic of the same togetherness spirit of sharing, which goes back to earliest records of human history. Street decorations were displayed in early Rome. Caroling comes from England, Christmas trees from Germany. Santa Claus is American, and mistletoe is a pagan custom dating back to the Druids. Lighted candles have long been used at the Jewish "Feast of Lights" or Chanukah.

Holiday hair — looking for something different

During the holiday season, women want to look their best. A big part of that look is hair that is styled and accessorized in the most flattering way.

There are many inexpensive, yet creative ways to dress up your hair during the holiday season, according to the hair experts at the Aerosol Packaging Council.

Above all, start with a good cut that is flattering, and give it body with an aerosol spray conditioner. Then, when you want to look special for a festive event, try one of these easy techniques.

Buy silk ribbons in a few different colors to match your outfit. Twist them individually around a braid or ponytail or tie them in bows.

For more ideas, visit your local notion or sewing store. They have great trimming accessories that can brighten up any hairstyle or can be used as headbands with loose hair.

The metallic look is very much in fashion

To look your best this holiday season, style and dress up your hair with a wide variety of accessories.

now, so try working in gold or bronze string on the top of the head. Braid the hair and wrap the string around both ends.

After washing hair, braid while the hair is still wet. Sleep on it and, in the morning when the braids are taken out, you will have hair that looks full and crimped.

Place a pair of decorative combs around a bun or in short hair to get a festive look.

Flowers, beads, combs, headbands, ribbons, lace and even feathers can be used in the hair to achieve that elegant dressed-up look just right for all those holiday festivities.

Try a new color for the holidays or put streaks in your hair. There are spray-on, shampoo-out temporary hair colors available that can really achieve a new and festive look.

Christmas is also a great time to try out new hairstyles to wear to all those parties.

Volume and uplift is the key to hair now. One way to keep your hair from "falling" by the end of the day is to use a hairspray.

Hairsprays today are different from the "beehive-style" days, because now they are light, dry quickly, and add body and shine to any hairstyle.

Aerosols are ideal to keep hair in place because the fine mist "holds" the hair while keeping it soft and "touchable." Make sure you read the label directions before you use it.

With holiday time almost here, now is the time to start preparing yourself to look your best, and to collect all those new accessories to brighten up your hair. Start practicing now and it will be one less thing to take care of during the busy Christmas season.

Santa's little helper decorates the Christmas tree while dressed in the newest holiday wear from Health-tex. The "cinder heather" overall with matching striped turtleneck features snap fastenings for speedy changes. The suggested retail price is $21.75.

Design your own cards for that personal touch

Why not add a more personal touch to Christmas this year, by designing and producing your own Christmas cards?

Mimeographing and dittoing are the least expensive ways of reproducing medium quantities of simple artwork or writing.

After copying the drawing, writing, or tracing onto a stencil, the work is printed on white or colored paper. Fifty copies should cost less than a dollar.

For small quantities, photo copying may be just the thing. Prices vary dramatically, depending on the number desired. For artwork, "wet" copy machines will provide satisfactory reproduction of color tones and shades of gray that would be lost on many "dry" copiers.

Dry copy machines retain black areas that drop out or fade with other machines. For reproducing simple written copy, dry machines are preferable.

Offset printing will give you high-quality reproduction at a reasonable price. Offset reproduction can be done in up to four colors, and is a process where the printer makes a plate of the drawing or writing, and then uses the plate to print copies.

There are two types of plates that the printer can use; one is paper and is sufficient for simple line drawings, sharply contrasted pictures or photographs, and written copy.

Metal plates, which are more expensive, allow the printer to do more accurate reproductions of photos, color artwork and pencil drawings. Heavier card-stock paper can be used with offset presses, enabling ing a true authenticity.

The work can be run off by the printer in a variety of colored stocks. All metal plates and some paper-plate offset printers can enlarge or reduce the size of the drawing to enable it to fit in a specific space.

Be aware that offset printing is a competitive business, so shop around. Fifty card-stock pages should run around $6 for paper offset. One hundred regular stock paper reproductions average $3.50 to $5.50.

To make Christmas cards featuring your own creative flourishes, or your children's artwork, simply divide the paper in half either horizontally or vertically.

The work can either be drawn on the right half or bottom half. Later, when the paper is folded, you will have your cards.

Put an end to Silent Nights.

Christmas is for Children, or so it's said, and this handpainted Sesame Street bank and Tom and JerryTM musical will bring smiles to the faces of young boys and girls on Christmas morning. The young girl's silverplated comb and brush set is a lasting keepsake that will be treasured for generations. By Gorham, these gifts are priced from $9 to $25.

Santa Claus: fact or fiction?

One of the first facts of life that a little child must come to grips with is the question of Santa Claus.

It's up to you, the parent, to give the Santa Claus fable as much or as little embellishment as you want.

Some parents like to stimulate young imaginations with wonderfully elaborate tales of Santa; others prefer to go easy on the Santa stories in order to keep things in perspective.

The truth is that, even if you deny the fantasies of Santa and the elves, your child will not. The parents of one little boy, who reared him without fantasies, told their babysitter to forget about pacifying their boy with an Christmas story.

"Teddy," they announced, "has never believed in Santa Claus." The second after they left, however, Teddy beamed and said that even though his folks pretended that they bought the presents, he knew better.

Children will believe in fairies, elves and Santa, if they want to believe and as long as they are happy believing. It makes no difference when a child accepts the truth, because most children are clever enough to see the Santa story for what it is — another reflection of your love.

The only confusion seems to be caused by the department store Santas who misinterpret their jobs. Despite the fact that most children will rationalize without your help — that this man isn't the real Santa — it might be better to tell your brood beforehand that all the Santas in the stores and on the street are only "helpers."

Almost without exception, on Christmas eve your children will be fretting over Santa's approval, no matter how much reassurance you give. When this happens it helps to tell them how wonderful they are, then let them help you prepare a midnight snack for Santa.

Gifts come from heart

Not all Christmas gifts cost money. Many of us feel a financial squeeze this time of year — we want to give special gifts to those special people, but often we just don't have the money.

But, there are many gifts which are sure to be appreciated for their uniqueness and personal touch, but which costs little or nothing in monetary terms.

Offer some cooking lessons and a notebook of your favorite recipes.

If you know someone who keeps their checkbook in a state of precarious disorder, offer to balance it for them.

Or, volunteer a few hours of typing to that college student on your list.

If you're handy around the house, offer your services as a carpenter. After all, everybody needs something done around the house or apartment.

Youngsters could volunteer to do the dishes for a month or clean out the basement.

Just remember, Christmas gifts should come from the heart — and hearts don't need wrappings.

Christmas shopping guide maximizes your valuable time

Christmas is a wonderful season of fun and fantasy—and the time of year when the 24-hour woman puts in a lot of 25-hour days.

If you add "must-do" Christmas shopping to your job, housework and husband-and-child care, it adds up to a lot of hours that just aren't there.

While your life can become a veritable whirlwind of activity, you can accomplish all your goals, and still keep the spirit of Christmas with a Woman's Organizational Plan.

- Don't shop aimlessly, haphazardly. Disorganized shopping results in non-productive, time-consuming meandering.
- Make up a special Christmas Shopping Guide. It's easy, it's fun and it will organize you, too! Here's how:

Use a spiral notebook and list gifts in it by category. For instance, designate one page for family, one for friends, and another for business associates.

Think First! Carefully list, on each page, the recipient's name, address and your gift choice.

For maximum efficiency, note the recipients' names in order of location—long distance gifts first, then those in your own area. Add a listing for purchase date, wrap date, and date sent.

In this way, you'll automatically shop for those packages that need extra mailing time first, and you can pinpoint your progress and note what you still have to do at a glance.

Carry your Christmas Shopping Guide in your handbag at all times. Then, whenever you have time—on your lunch hour, after work, or on a Saturday—make a final notation of which recipients' gifts can be purchased in the same store and do all of these on one trip.

- Give a gift that's complimentary to the recipient's personality.

- Purchasing several gifts at one counter saves time. For instance, you might decide to buy several gifts at your favorite fragrance counter.

Purchasing gifts of fragrance saves time because many are already Christmas wrapped, and you can buy gifts in several price ranges at once, with the help of only one sales person.

- If you have many gifts to give, plan on the most economical and creative use of your hard-earned money.

- Evaluate the people on your list and choose gifts that are appropriate to both their needs and your budget. That's what we mean by thoughtful gift giving.

A thousand words

Professional portrait is special gift for family

A professionally made portrait is one of the most personal Christmas gifts you can give to special friends and loved ones — especially parents and grandparents.

To have your portrait ready for the holiday, be sure to consult your professional photographer at least two months before Christmas, sooner if possible. You should talk about the sitting and discuss your portrait options.

The photographer can help you select the setting, mood, colors, and style that will reflect your personal ity, interests, and even your life style.

You should also talk over the different enlargements you can order, as well as custom finishes, mounts and frames to make the photo more personal.

If you have a casual life style, you may prefer an outdoors portrait. A more formal look can be achieved in the studio.

Here are a few additional tips to help you plan for your portrait setting:

Wear clothing that you feel comfortable in. Color-coordinated outfits, usually with solid colors or subtle patterns, look best in portraits.

Most photographers advise clients to avoid wearing anything that will detract from the face, which is the most important part of any portrait.

Makeup should be in step with the clothing a woman is wearing. Keep hairstyles natural to avoid a dated or overly formal look.

From one sitting, you can order small framed prints for desk or dresser, as well as large ones to display at home.

Wherever your portrait is placed, it will keep the spirit of Christmas alive all year long.

Special present

A colorful portrait of the children is a special gift for grandma and grandpa which is sure to bring out hugs and happiness on Christmas morning. Your professional photographer can create an image that you'll be proud to give. When the photograph is framed, mounted and displayed, it will help keep the memory of Christmas alive all year long.

Piano livens up holiday party

Tune the piano, break out the sheet music, and brush up those golden oldies. Holiday time is sing-along time, and if you own a piano, you're in luck.

It takes a little imagination to make the most of your piano at parties. These tips from the National Piano Manufacturers Association should help:

- The more people that can gather around the piano and sing, the better — so move it away from the wall and into the center of the room.

If it bothers you to look at the unfinished back to the instrument, trim a colorful Christmas tablecloth to fit and attach with double-sided tape.

- Christmas carols are of course a must, but try supplementing them with songbooks of favorites by Cole Porter, Rodgers and Hart, and the Beatles, or with country and western hits.

- Turn the top of the piano into a drink proof-surface by covering it with a clear sheet of plastic, cut to fit.

- Even if you can play the piano, try to invite at least one guest who's also musical. That way, someone can always be at the keyboard.

Unusual holiday tips

A realistic look at Christmas yields some unusual holiday suggestions. Nancy Evans, Glamour Magazine's book columnist, has these clues for you.

When you live in a studio apartment so small you can barely turn around without bumping into the foldup couch or the collapsible dining table or the ever-spidering spiden plant, you'd probably never dream of having a Christmas bash. Try these tips:

- Clean your apartment of all the clutter. Put all sundries in the oven and keep extra party supplies in the bathtub or under the bed.

- Make friends with your super. Give him his present early this year, and ask if you can use the basement to store some of your belongings.

- Stagger the arrival time on the invitations to avoid too much of a crowd.

If you're a single parent, fill the house with relatives, friends and neighbors to create a sense of warmth and "family" for your kids.

Get them involved with the invitation list, food and decorations and invite their friends as well as your own to the party.

Make time for bedtime stories — with beautifully illustrated children's books.

And, don't forget to ask if you can help your kids think of presents for their Dad and their grandparents on his side.

Unique Christmas book idea

Parents can give their children the most unique Christmas Book they'll ever get by simply putting together art work that they've already done, either on their own or for school projects.

Basically, all that has to be done is for parents to collect their child's accumulated art work, and then create a story around it.

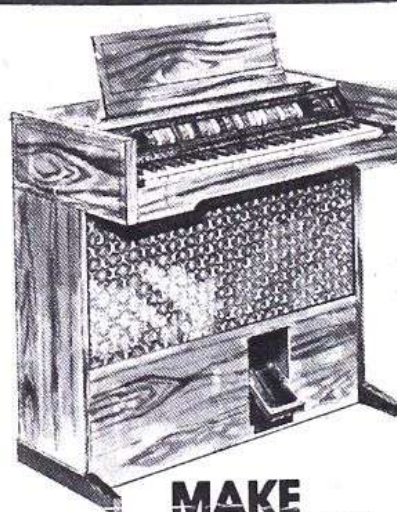

By simply putting the drawings between the covers of a hardcover sketchbook, and by tying them together with some simple prose, you can give your child a flattering and inexpensive gift.

If you like, you can paste the drawings on different colors of paper.

The part of the book that your child will like the most will probably be the beginning, where you can prominently display your child's name, giving him or her the artistic credit, due a budding Da Vinci.

High speed action

Racing fans will enjoy colorful calendar

Auto racing is the third most popular spectator sport in the United States, with more than 55 million Americans turning out at speedways around the country to see high speed auto racing action.

The avid race car fan goes to races every weekend, reads about his favorite drivers between races, and collects auto racing memorabilia. With this person in mind, Clinton Book Company, the world's leading publisher of automotive information, has published Chilton's Auto Racing Calendar 1982.

This 12-month calendar makes an ideal Christmas gift for the racing enthusiast in your home, or the friend who just can't get enough of the fast-paced excitement at the track.

Each month displays a full-color photograph of a race car in action at major tracks around the country from Dover to Daytona, from Indianapolis to Riverside. The scene depicts major U.S. racing events — NASCAR, INDY 500, USAC, NHRA, IHRA and IMSA.

P.L. "Paul" Newman, Mario Andretti, Bobby Unser, A. J. Foyt, Richard Petty and Billy Meyer are just a few of the top name drivers whose illustrations are inset on each action shot.

A special feature is a tentative monthly list of major race dates and places for 1982. Holidays are, clearly marked and large spaces allow room to keep track of appointments and schedules.

Priced at $7.95, Chilton's Auto Racing Calendar 1982 is a great gift for the "hard-to-buy-for" someone in your life! Look for the calendar display in your local bookstore, or order directly from Chilton Book Company, Radnor, PA 19089.

Shortcuts to holiday preparation

The hectic holiday season can be great fun for everyone — except sometimes the family cook-hostess-shopper-package wrapper.

Overwhelming work and responsibilities have been known to bring on feelings of exhaustion and depression.

And if, like many women, you've gone back to work after spending years a full-time homemaker, you can be totally done in if you try to do everything the same way you always did.

The way to avoid the pitfalls is to plan ahead, take easy shortcuts wherever possible, and share the work so everybody has the energy to share the fun.

Here are some suggestions:

- Since teenagers are the most dedicated shoppers, assign them to gift-buying duty for relatives. Just make sure you assign a budget for each gift so they don't get carried away by the Christmas spirit.

- Boys sometimes discover the joy of cooking in home economics classes. Go ahead... take a chance and ask your son to make his specialty for the family. Then, if the dish turns out to be delicious, ask him to prepare it for guests.

- Give the house a major cleaning several weeks prior to the holidays, so all that's left is some light and easy housekeeping.

You can make bathroom cleaning easier throughout the holiday season by putting a strong, long-lasting automatic cleaner in the tank.

The bowl will stay clean, with clean water, for up to four months with little or no scrubbing.

- Check out stores in your area to see if any sell specially-cooked gourmet dishes. Having an elegant heat-and-serve vegetable, potato or pasta specialty can take much of the pressure out of company dinner preparations.

Book worm?

Wealth of new material awaits bookstore browsers

If you're one of those people (and there are many) who enjoy a "solidly booked" Christmas, there's no need to suggest you wend your way to your favorite bookstore to select gifts for your nearest and dearest.

However, once you're there, you may find you need a certain amount of help in choosing among the many tempting selections.

Between hardcovers and paperbacks, new releases and venerable re-issues, special gift sets (there are new ones every year, in addition to all the old favorites), and glossy, over-sized volumes, there's such a wealth of alternatives available, as to put even the most devout book-lover and bookstore-browser into something of a tizzy.

From mysteries to histories, how-to volumes for the masses to esoteric tracts for just a few, there's sure to be something to satisfy every reader's taste, no matter how unusual.

Travelers are sure to enjoy Cities (Clarkson N. Potter Inc., $17.95), edited by John McGreevy. Cities is a compilation of 13 pieces, each focused on a particular metropolis, from New York to Stockholm, Jerusalem to Sydney.

Each article is written by a celebrity who is familiar with — and fascinated by — the city in question, and the result is a pastiche of personal views to be savored by armchair travelers north, south, east and west.

For instance, the section on Athens is written by (who else?) Melina Mercouri; that on Chicago by Studs Terkel. The text is accompanied by 260 photos, half of which are in full color.

All in all, a feast for the eye, the mind and the imagination, which will take the willing reader around the world and back again on a voyage of pure delight.

Speaking of celebrities — and who doesn't — a volume sure to be of interest is The Book of People, (hardcover published by G.P. Putnam's Sons, $19.95; in paperback, it's from Perigee, $9.95) by Christopher P. Anderson.

Star-gazers will love this telescope, which will give them a host of insights into the famous. Over 500 celebrities from Woody Allen to Richard Zanuck, are sketched within the pages of The Book of People.

There are thumbnail sketches of each, plus vital statistics, and telling quotes from each.

Listen for a minute to Barbara Streisand ("When I sing, people shut up."), Rock Hudson ("What do I see when I look in a mirror? A lie.") and Ella Fitzgerald ("Everybody wants to know about my style and how it came about. It's no big secret. It's the way I feel."), and the floodgates of fasci-cination will open.

Amateur astrologers will be able to learn their favorite stars' birthsigns, as well as more mundane facts from birthdate to marital status to income.

In short, it's a volume that's certain to satisfy the curiosity of many, at the same time as it increases the curiosity of others.

In the tradition of the continuously popular books of trivia, lists, facts and what-have-you, comes The First of Everything (Delacorte Press, $13.95), by Dennis Sanders.

Just about everything you never realized you wanted to know about firsts is contained therein — from the first calendar (the concept, according to Sanders, goes back at least to 34,000 B.C.) to the first non-stop transcontinental flight (May 2-3, 1923); from the first male child to achieve stardom in talking motion pictures (Jackie Cooper, who was nominated for a Supporting Actor Oscar for Skippy in 1931), to the first professional actress to achieve renown (Isabella Andreini, who made her mark on 16th century Italy).

There's a great deal more of the same (almost 400 pages worth, in fact), and it will all be manna to trivia buffs from eight to 80.

In a more serious vein, there are a slew of books which will educate, elucidate and inform on a wide range of topics from language to biology.

Take The Color Atlas of Human Anatomy (Harmony Books, $6.95), for example. A prospective doctor among the children of your acquaintance will be thrilled to receive it, as will many an adult of whatever profession.

The color illustrations of the body and its many organs provide a behind-the-scenes look at the miracle of human existence, taking into account recent discoveries.

Women Aloft (Time-Life Books, $13.95) by Valerie Moolman is the 10th volume in The Epic of Flight series.

It's a lavishly illustrated history of female aviators and the contributions they have made, from the famous Amelia Earhart to the many women who never achieved worldwide recognition despite their achievements. A fascinating volume, it will be treasured for years by its lucky recipient.

Students of the English language, as well as anyone who feels the irresistible tug of adjectives, verbs and nouns, will enjoy receiving American Expressions: A Thesaurus of Effective and Colorful Speech (McGraw-Hill, $10.95), edited by Robert B. Costello and Jess Stein.

Not a glossy volume bound for coffee-table glory, American Expressions is truly fascinating in its own right, and is a purveyor of the picturesque without pictures.

Its savvy giver will rightly be able to, "laugh in his beard," "laugh in his sleeve," "look as if butter wouldn't melt in his mouth," "look like the cat that swallowed the canary" and "pat himself on his back."

The recipient, well... he'll be, "happy as a clam at high tide," "happy as a lark," "in all his glory" and "in hog heaven," after he opens his present.

Christmas carols preserve spirit

The spirit and gaiety of the holidays are preserved in our beloved Christmas carols. Through the centuries, the carol has assumed many different forms, including processional dances and folk songs.

Today, these folk songs are all that remain of the medieval celebration which lasted from Christmas Eve to Epiphany, a twelve day festival of games, fine food, and gift-giving.

In those days of old, a feudal lord would deck his halls with holly and invite all those living within his realm to partake of the feast and fun. "Ladies dancing" and "Lords a-leaping" would abound.

One of today's most treasured carols, "The Twelve Days of Christmas," seems to embody the spirit of those festive days. An English folk song believed to have been handed down from generation to generation, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" was originally a secular rhyme, first printed in 1780.

Today it is a joyful song in which, on each of the twelve days of Christmas, a suitor gives his "true love" an increasingly elaborate menagerie.

The frolicking characters of this joyful song have been recreated in silver-plated Christmas bells by Reed & Barton Silversmiths, one of this company's leading silver companies.

Each year since 1977, Reed & Barton has added two more "days" to its collection of bells, each representing one of the song's gifts.

This year marks the appearance of dancing ladies and leaping lords, the ninth and tenth segments of the carol.

In 1981, it may not be possible to give your true love everything from a partridge to twelve drummers drumming, but silver bells displayed on the mantle or hanging from your tree will be cherished forever. Reed & Barton sells them for $18.50 a pair in various jewelry stores.

"The twelve days of Christmas" is one of the best-loved carols of the holiday season. Reed & Barton Silversmiths has presented the gaiety of this carol in a collection of twelve silver-plated bells, each one representing one of the carol's classic gifts. "Lady Dancing" and "Lord Leaping" the ninth and tenth gifts, help to ring in this year for your true love.

Gift ideas for fishermen

For a change, I want to dedicate this particular column to the wives, mothers and girlfriends of all Fishing Lines readers. If you want some angling paraphernalia to appear under your tree on Christmas morning you'd better let the lady of the house read this.

Okay, girls, so your man likes to fish and you're wondering what to get him for Christmas. Unless he's like me and cleverly leaves an assortment of fishing catalogs with certain items circled lying about the house, you probably don't have any ideas. Or worse, you're confused by the multitude of fishing gear on the market and are thinking of forgetting the whole idea and picking up a pair of socks or a shirt for the old man. Heaven forbid!

The easiest way to arrive at a decision for a gift is to first figure out what kind of fisherman he is. Does he do a lot of smelt dipping or trout fishing? If so, a pair of waders would do nicely. Most area tackleshops have a good selection for around $25.

If you decide on waders, be sure they're insulated and stay away from vinyl ones. Vinyl rips very easily, and there are lots of stones and sharp sticks lying on the bottom of most trout streams. And felt soles would be a nice option on the waders.

Hip boots are a good alternative if waders are too expensive for your pocketbook. They usually cost half as much as waders.

Another useful item is a tacklebox. A serious angler, particularly a bass fisherman, can always use another box in which to stash lures, maps and other valuable odds and ends.

The next time your man is out of the house, take a peek inside his tacklebox. If it appears crammed, another one would most likely be appreciated.

I prefer a plastic tacklebox over a metal one because it doesn't make as much noise when you slide it across the bottom of a boat.

There are many different types of tackleboxes nowadays — some for spinnerbaits, some for plastic worms and others for crankbaits, in addition to the standard with assorted trays and compartments. But whichever one you choose, be sure the trays are wormproof. There is a chemical in plastic worms and grubs and such that will eat through a tacklebox if it is not immune to this reaction.

I know every angler would treasure a new graphite rod. Or, better yet, a boron rod. And there are even some rods on the market that combine the strength of fiberglass with the sensitivity of graphite and boron. One such rod is Shakespeare's new Ugly Stick. I own one and can honestly say it is the finest rod I have ever used. The price isn't bad, either — between $30 and $40 — and they come in either baitcasting or spinning models.

Other gift suggestions include sonar units, temperature probes and electric trolling motors. Just be sure to stick with a brand name, such as Garcia, Lowrance, Humminbird, Shakespeare, Minn Kota and Silvertroll.

There are also some "stand-by" gifts, such as an assortment of his favorite fishing lures, a set of marker floats, a flotation vest, kits for tying flies and making plastic worms and, if he brings home a lot of lunkers, a fish mounting kit. Most of these ideas can be had for around $20 or less.

Another great gift, regardless of what kind of fisherman he is, is a good book. There are many excellent selections covering all types and phases of fishing available at local bookstores.

A well-rounded angling library, in my opinion, should include the following volumes: "Through The Fish's Eye," by Mark Sosin and John Clark; "How To Find Fish And Make Them Strike," by Joseph D. Bates, Jr.; "Steelheading For Everybody," by David Richey; "Practical Black Bass Fishing," by Mark Sosin and Bill Dance; "Fly Fishing Strategy," by Doug Swisher and Carl Richards; "Matching The Hatch," by Ernest Schweibert; "In The Ring Of The Rise," by Vince Marinaro, and "Them Old Brown Fish," by Billy Westmoreland.

These selections cover just about all the popular species and techniques.

A book is an excellent way for a guy to go fishing even if he's confined indoors, or if he's waiting for warmer weather before taking out his fishing equipment again.

And it's a thoughtful and easy way to say "Merry Christmas" to your fisherman.

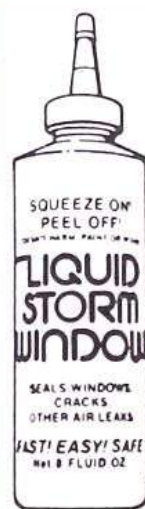

Give a Food Processor For Christmas and let them discover for themselves how true the saying "as easy as pie" can really be. General Electric's FP-6 Food Processor Supreme will have pie crust mixed and ready to roll out quickly. A powerful Direct Drive induction motor handles tough jobs like kneading Christmas breads, and a continuous flow food chute offers unlimited slicing and shredding capacity without having to stop to empty the processor bowl. Equipped with three attachments to slice, shred, chop, grate, mix and puree, this processor has a suggested retail of $135.98.

Create Original Gift Wraps by dunking plain tote bags and gift boxes through three colors of Krylon spray paints into a pail of water. You can dunk lots of other objects too—tin cans, glass bottles, even a rock from your garden. But start with the gift wrap!
